

Contents

- Foreword 11
- 1 Introduction 13
 - 1.1 Starting points 13
 - 1.2 On force and violence 15
 - 1.3 Concepts and terms in this investigation 17
 - 1.4 About this book 20
- 2 Research into police use of excessive force in Germany 23
 - 2.1 Data from official statistics 23
 - 2.2 Empirical studies and evidence gathered by civil society 25
 - 2.3 Summary 30
- 3 Methodology 33
 - 3.1 Quantitative survey of victims 33
 - 3.2 Qualitative expert interviews 43
 - 3.3 Validity and limitations of the study 59
- 4 Situations in which force is used, its forms and consequences 63
 - 4.1 Occasion and sequence of events 63
 - 4.2 Characteristics of police officers 70
 - 4.3 Type and frequency of use of force 82
 - 4.4 Consequences of use of force 86
 - 4.5 Summary 97
- 5 Interaction and escalation 101
 - 5.1 Communication 104

5.2	Non-compliance, assertions of authority and “resistance cops”	115
5.3	Other factors affecting interactions	124
5.4	The moment of escalation from victims’ perspectives	141
5.5	Experiences of discrimination	155
5.6	Summary	166
6	Evaluating police use of force	171
6.1	Standards applied to evaluating police use of force	171
6.2	How perspectives shape evaluations of police use of force	186
6.3	Victims’ evaluations	189
6.4	Police officers’ evaluations	203
6.5	Evaluations by public prosecutors and judges	214
6.6	Summary	218
7	Methods employed by police officers and victims to deal with problematised use of force	223
7.1	Police responses	223
7.2	How victims deal with and report use of force	245
7.3	Summary	258
8	How the criminal justice system handles accusations of unlawful use of force	263
8.1	How criminal proceedings are initiated and conducted	263
8.2	Roles and practices of institutions involved in preliminary proceedings	268
8.3	Interviewing police officers in preliminary proceedings	290
8.4	Distinctive evidential characteristics	297
8.5	Public prosecutors’ charging decisions following preliminary proceedings	308
8.6	Court proceedings in charges of bodily harm in public office	315
8.7	Summary	328
9	The relationship between criminal proceedings into bodily harm in public office and proceedings into resistance to enforcement officers	333
9.1	Criminal proceedings against victims	334
9.2	Reports and “counter-reports”	339

9.3	Methods employed by public prosecutors to handle conflicting proceedings	348
9.4	Summary	353
10	Discussion	355
10.1	Situations and interactions involving use of excessive force	356
10.2	Evaluations and outcomes: the power to control narratives in action	362
10.3	Further reductions in complexity within the criminal justice system	370
10.4	The functional dominance of the police	377
10.5	Prospects	381
	Appendices	387
	Appendix I: Transcription rules	387
	Appendix II: Respondents' injuries	389
	Appendix III: Factorial analysis of items on behaviour of those involved ..	390
	Figures	393
	Tables	395
	Literature	397