

TABLE OF CONTENTS

LIST OF FIGURES, IMAGES & TABLES	10
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	12
SUMMARY	14
ACKNOWLEDGMENT	15
PROLOGUE	16
1. INTRODUCTION	18
1.1 RECALLING THE PREVAILING PARADIGM.....	18
1.1.1 Forested landscapes of Rwanda.....	18
1.1.2 The apparent logic: more people – more deforestation	20
1.1.3 A given path: afforestation made obligatory	22
1.1.4 Progressive erosion: a narrative loses ground.....	23
1.1.5 A broken frame: the deconstruction of established imaginations	24
1.1.6 What I see is no more: reconstructing landscape fragments.....	25
1.1.7 Suppressed memories or amnesia: on the limitation of insight	27
1.1.8 Preview of coming chapters.....	31
1.2 THEORETICAL FRAMING: PUTTING MEMORIES INTO PERSPECTIVE.....	32
1.2.1 Geographies of landscapes and visibility	32
1.2.2 Postcolonial theory and themed environments	36
1.2.3 Political ecology: politicize and denaturalize	42
1.2.4 Restoration ecology: fast forward into a bygone world?.....	45
1.2.5 Interconnectivity of theorems: this paper’s position.....	53
1.3 METHODOLOGY: LOCATING AND REACTIVATING	56
1.3.1 Repeat photography	56
1.3.2 Methodological processing	57
2. RWANDA’S LANDSCAPES IN VIEWSHEDS.....	69
2.1 AGRICULTURAL SYSTEMS: BUHEMBE HILL.....	69
2.1.1 Agro-histories: the assumed and the unseen	70
2.1.2 Act one: finding histories, staging realities, documenting fiction	74
2.1.3 The past: wishful memories and uncertainty of scale.....	76
2.1.4 Today: confirming the past in the present.....	81
2.1.5 Conclusions: feed the future	87
2.2 LAKES AND ISLANDS: SHEGESHA, KIVU & CO.	94
2.2.1 Rwanda’s lakes	95
2.2.2 Pivotal points or periphery? The role of Rwanda’s lakes in history	96

2.2.3 Historic lakescape conditions	98
2.2.4 An attempt to extrapolate with historic maps	101
2.2.5 Historic photographs and one target viewshed: Rubengera Bay	104
2.2.6 Transformational change	109
2.2.7 Small Island Biodiversity Conservation Program	116
2.2.8 Wrong truths about shoreline restoration.....	118
2.2.9 Established reasoning for restoration.....	121
2.3 MISSIONARY SETTLEMENTS: RULINDO PARISH.....	123
2.3.1 Doing the Lord's work: missionaries in Rwanda.....	124
2.3.2 Simulacrum Vaticani.....	126
2.3.3 Rulindo 1913: the ideal place	127
2.3.4 Visible and invisible influences	129
2.3.5 Rulindo 2012: how grass roots become trees	132
2.3.6 Radical terracing: "so now we really have a problem"	135
2.3.7 United monocultures of Rwanda	138
2.3.8 Landscape rehabilitation: new terraces and old secondary forests	139
2.4 MOUNTAIN SUMMITS: GAHINGA CRATER.....	144
2.4.1 Introduction: eruptions and origin	145
2.4.2 Themed environments: fire mountains and ancient gods	146
2.4.3 Illustrating wilderness.....	148
2.4.4 Historic image 1907: a pristine system?	149
2.4.5 Present image: more than pristine?.....	151
2.4.6 An alternative scenario and ascent.....	155
2.4.7 What is natural vegetation in a changing environment?.....	162
2.5 RIVER COURSES: MUKUNGA WATERSHED.....	164
2.5.1 Seeing the same river twice	165
2.5.2 Inspection into a historic landscape composition	168
2.5.3 Present viewshed: "These forests you see were planted"	170
2.5.4 Summary and restoration contextualization	174
2.5.5 Extrapolation of findings	175
2.6. URBAN AREAS: KIGALI.....	177
2.6.1 Introduction: urban beginnings.....	178
2.6.2 Past landscape configurations: the deforestation of grasslands	179
2.6.3 Master narratives of origin: King Ruwabugiri vs. Dr. Kandt	183
2.6.4 Unseen Memories (1911): Kigali's last tree	189
2.6.5 A city within the woods: present landscape configurations	192
2.6.6 In the name of restoration: re-zoning the Rwandan capital	196
2.7 NATIONAL PARKS: THE VIRUNGAS	200
2.7.1 Introduction to a narrative about the region.....	201
2.7.2. Demarcation of a national park: theming transition territories.....	204
2.7.3 The eastern frontier: Muhabura, Gahinga and Sabinyo	205
2.7.4 The western frontier: Visoke, Karisimbi and Mikenno	209
2.7.5 Paper parks and maps	214
2.7.6 A view from above.....	219
2.7.7 Rewriting history: two tales to tell.....	224

2.7.8 Restoration in the mist	228
2.7.9 The frontier within: germs, tourism and geothermal prospects	230
2.8 INVISIBLE FORESTS & DISAPPEARING MEMORIES: GISHWATI	232
2.8.1 The last piece of the puzzle: the remains of a narrative	233
2.8.2 Factors of change: different versions of disappearance	235
2.8.3 A journey in reverse: unseen histories underneath the canopy	239
2.8.4 Forgotten by history: the lost tribe of Rwanda	246
2.8.5 Buried epistemologies: invisible inhabitants	251
2.8.6 Epilogue: the past is yet to come	258
3. CONCLUSION	261
3.1 REFRAMING THE OLD PARADIGM	262
3.1.1 Points of highest certainty: 64 re-photographed viewsheds	262
3.1.2 Paths of likelihood: six explorative tracks across the country	265
3.1.3 Areas of assurance: seeing the forest through the trees	266
3.2 A NEW FRAME TO A REVISED PARADIGM	268
3.3 ACCESSING THE PRESENT THROUGH THE PAST	269
3.3.1 Boserup versus Malthus	269
3.3.2 Hypothetical deforestation	270
3.3.3 The age of restoration	271
3.4 THE PERSPECTIVES OF A METHODOLOGY	271
3.4.1 Recognizing novelty & recalibration restoration	271
3.4.2 Repeat photography & themed environments	272
3.4.3 Political ecologies of restoration	273
3.4.4 Newly emerging questions	274
3.5 EPILOGUE: CLOSING THE ARCHIVE – A COLONIAL JOURNEY CONTINUES	282
APPENDIX	289
BIBLIOGRAPHY	289
AUDIO-VISUAL MATERIAL	329
CARTOGRAPHIC MATERIALS	329
LIST OF INTERVIEWS	331