

Contents

Foreword	9
Chapter 1 Most people do not buy green products	13
The desire for and interest in green products are present.....	15
However, the attitude-behavior gap prevails	16
Chapter 2 The 60% Potential—winning over mainstream consumers ..	21
Is it 50%, 60% or 70%?—A brief explanation of terms	25
What is the point of dividing people into Eco-Fans, Eco-Grouches, and the 60%?	26
The battle of beliefs between Eco-Fans and Eco-Grouches ..	33
How do the 60% behave?	37
Chapter 3 Customer Insights for the 60%	47
Customer Insight 1: Among the 60%, the word sustainability has an image problem.	50
Customer Insight 2: The 60% want to do the “right” sustainable thing, but with as little effort as possible. They are looking for shortcuts in the information jungle.	60
Customer Insight 3: For the 60%, price beats sustainability in purchasing decisions. But brand beats price.	71
Customer Insight 4: In the eyes of the 60%, ecological sustainability is no longer a differentiating factor.	74

Customer Insight 5: Fear of greenwashing leads to greenhushing? For the 60%, sustainability is a journey, not a final destination.	77
Customer Insight 6: Among the 60%, the understanding of sustainability varies significantly.	85
Customer Insight 7: For the 60%, ecological sustainability must be “worthwhile.” Above all, they seek to improve their own lives.	89
Chapter 4 Overlooking the 60% Potential—brands in the Eco-Trap ...	95
The historical strength of green pioneers: Substance.....	96
From growth market to saturation—or: New kids on the organic block.....	97
Too little emotional differentiation	98
From the organic boom to the Eco-Trap	99
Getting out of the Eco-Trap	100
The green pioneer Weleda escapes the Eco-Trap	108
Native or immigrant—both may be caught in the Eco-Trap ..	110
Interviews with marketing executives— understanding the 60% Potential better	113
Chapter 5 Unlocking the 60% Potential: Democratizing green consumption for revenue growth and environmental sustainability	119
The limits of the 3-P model: Revenue versus environment ..	123
How can revenue and the environment be reconciled?	124
The 60%: The revenue lever	125
The 60%: The environmental lever	127

Chapter 6 The five CMO jobs to unlock the 60% Potential..... 131

CMO Job #1: Take the lead: Unlocking the 60% Potential is a key responsibility of the CMO 136

CMO Job #2: Reframe green consumption: “Ecological sustainability” needs a fresh, emotionally compelling face ... 144

CMO Job #3: Don’t get lost in the eco-jungle: Dive deep into the facts while keeping a clear focus on the surface 157

CMO Job #4: Don’t compromise: Green products must perform while becoming price-competitive 169

CMO Job #5: Go the extra mile: Sustainability isn’t a sprint;
it’s a marathon 179

Chapter 7 Unlocking the 60% Potential for various stakeholders 193

The 60% for politics 194

The 60% for sustainability departments 198

The 60% for Sustainable Natives 201

The 60% for Sustainable Immigrants 203

Concluding remarks From problem to solution: Marketing’s role in the green transformation 207

Glossary 211

Notes 215