

Contents

Avant-Propos — V

List of tables and figures — XI

On kings, conventions, and dates — XIII

Chapter 1

The rise of Assyria as an historical problem — 1

- 1.1 The ‘first empire’ — 1
- 1.2 The rise of the Neo-Assyrian Empire. A history of research — 5
- 1.3 Assyria in the ‘knot of empire’ — 11
- 1.4 Writing a new history of Assyria’s path to empire — 23

Chapter 2

Approaching the early Neo-Assyrian period — 25

- 2.1 “Problems of a unique character” — 25
- 2.2 akšud! The world of the early Neo-Assyrian campaign — 25
 - 2.2.1 The anatomy of an Assyrian campaign — 25
 - 2.2.2 The unexceptional early Neo-Assyrian army — 31
 - 2.2.3 The repeatable, sustainable Assyrian art of war — 35
 - 2.2.4 ‘Campaign-culture’. Spectacle, loyalty, and belonging on the march — 40
 - 2.2.5 Leaving one’s mark. Commemoration and the veracity of Assyrian royal inscriptions — 49
 - 2.2.6 Having the last word. Reconsidering the reception and transmission of Assyrian royal inscriptions — 52
- 2.3 Drawing a line. Assyria’s expansion re-articulated — 57
 - 2.3.1 Networks, oil-stains, and everything in-between — 57
 - 2.3.2 Hard, moveable borders and tributary hinterlands — 61
 - 2.3.3 “Aššur’s yoke”. Vassal territory beyond the Assyrian border — 65
 - 2.3.4 Early Neo-Assyrian ‘spot-expansions’ and the logic of urban conquest — 66
 - 2.3.5 A down-to-earth explanation of Assyrian ‘expansionism’ — 68
- 2.4 Early Neo-Assyrian provincialisation — 72
 - 2.4.1 Everything counts. Writing the biography of a province — 72
 - 2.4.2 Reading between the lines. Language and ‘transitional cases’ in the early Neo-Assyrian state — 77
- 2.5 “Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown”. The early Neo-Assyrian world of the king — 83
 - 2.5.1 The man at the centre of the world — 83
 - 2.5.2 The making of an Assyrian king — 88
 - 2.5.3 Making a difference. The king’s personal programme — 92
 - 2.5.4 Why stories matter. Cuneiform royal literature and its survival in later sources — 95
- 2.6 In the lions’ den. Assyria’s elites and the political sphere — 100
- 2.7 ‘United as one voice’. The silent Assyrian masses — 106

Chapter 3

A political history of the early Neo-Assyrian period — 109

- 3.1 The Middle Assyrian precedent — 109
- 3.2 The lost century. Salmānu-ašarēd II to Tukultī-apil-Ešarra II (1031*–936*) — 110
- 3.3 Prelude (935*–912*) — 112
 - 3.3.1 The slow recovery under Aššur-dān II (935*–ca. 913*) — 112
 - 3.3.2 Aššur-uballiṭ II*, a lost king of Assyria (913*–912*) — 113

3.4	Reconquest (912*–856) — 120
3.4.1	Adad-nārārī II, the “wolf on the fold” (912*–891) — 120
3.4.2	Consolidation. Tukultī-Ninurta II and the early reign of Aššur-nāṣir-apli II (891–ca. 875) — 123
3.4.3	The end of an era (ca. 875–856) — 126
3.5	Crisis or consolidation? The Assyrian Entrance (856–745) — 131
3.5.1	The early Neo-Assyrian ‘zenith’ (856–827) — 131
3.5.2	The succession war and fraught reign of Šamši-Adad V (826–811) — 137
3.5.3	‘Semiramis’ takes centre stage (ca. 810–802) — 141
3.5.4	An Assyrian duumvirate. Pālil-ēreš and Nergal-ilāya (802–787) — 145
3.5.5	Šamši-ilu’s supremacy (786–763) — 148
3.5.6	Rebellion. Tukultī-apil-Ešarra III* (763–758) — 154
3.5.7	The decline of the Šamši-ilu-regime, the lost reign of Salmānu-ašarēd V*, and the rise of Pūlu/Tukultī-apil-Ešarra IV* (757–743) — 156
3.6	Coda. Becoming king of the world (745–727) — 162

Chapter 4

Regional studies in the Neo-Assyrian expansion — 165

4.1	Retaking Ḫanigalbat. The Upper Ḫābūr — 165
4.1.1	Plain tales from the hills — 165
4.1.2	Ḫanigalbat and the Middle Assyrian expansion — 165
4.1.3	Prelude. The conquest and provincialisation of Katmuḫi (ca. 930–879) — 171
4.1.4	The ‘Ḫanigalbat Campaigns’ (901–894) — 173
4.1.5	The consolidation and provincialisation of the eastern Upper Ḫābūr (890–816) — 176
4.1.6	Bīt-Baḫiāni/Gūzāna. A remarkable ‘transitional case’ (868–808) — 179
4.1.7	For grain and glory. The reconquest of the Upper Ḫābūr — 183
4.2	The Zagros and Eastern Taurus — 184
4.2.1	The ‘hilly flanks’ — 184
4.2.2	In Sibir’s footsteps. Assyrian forays into the Bronze-age Zagros — 185
4.2.3	Piedmont kingdoms, highland emporia, and mountain fastnesses — 188
4.2.4	Conquering the foothills (935*–855) — 194
4.2.5	The Rise of Urartu and the Battle for the Zagros (865–747) — 198
4.2.6	Consolidation and reverses (912*–745) — 205
4.2.7	Of horses and men. The Assyrian interests in the Zagros — 211
4.3	Once more over the Kāšiāru. The Upper Tigris — 212
4.3.1	Over the hills and far away . . . — 212
4.3.2	A fractured past. Middle Assyria and its aftermath in the Upper Tigris — 213
4.3.3	A return to the Upper Tigris (ca. 911–826) — 216
4.3.4	Tuṣḫan and Amēdu/Bīt-Zamāni/Na’iri/Sinābu. Two very different Assyrian border provinces — 222
4.3.5	The war for the Upper Tigris and its aftermath (819–673) — 226
4.3.6	Conclusion. Assyria’s complicated ventures in the Upper Tigris — 229
4.4	Contested space. The Lower Ḫābūr and Middle Euphrates — 230
4.4.1	A point of contention — 230
4.4.2	A Late Bronze-age flashpoint — 231
4.4.3	The competition for the Middle Euphrates (ca. 905–ca. 820) — 235
4.4.4	Provincialisation and power. Raṣappa’s golden age (877–737) — 241
4.4.5	Making a killing. Sūḫu in the shadow of Assyria (ca. 905–ca. 739) — 247
4.4.6	Sold downriver. Avarice and betrayal on the Ḫābūr and Euphrates — 252
4.5	Assyria’s prize? Southern Mesopotamia — 253
4.5.1	Mesopotamia. The land between two rivals — 253
4.5.2	A ‘special’ relationship — 253

- 4.5.3 Conflict and competition (ca. 912*-825) — 256
- 4.5.4 The succession war, Šamši-Adad V, and Sammu-rāmat (826-802) — 259
- 4.5.5 Epilogue. The Babylonian ulcer (802-609) — 266
- 4.5.6 Family matters and imperial frisson. The Assyrian debacles in Babylonia — 269
- 4.6 Assyria’s Rubicon? The Upper Euphrates — 270
- 4.6.1 Beyond the river — 270
- 4.6.2 No-man’s land. Assyrian interests on the Upper Euphrates during the Late Bronze age — 270
- 4.6.3 Bīt-Adini and the first jaunts beyond the Euphrates (899-855) — 276
- 4.6.4 Til-Barsip and the pīḫat-bīt-turtāni. An Assyrian bastion and western power-block (856-ca. 733) — 280
- 4.6.5 Assyrian forays west of the Euphrates (ca. 876-744) — 289
- 4.6.6 Assyria’s Rubicon? The Upper Euphrates and Assyrian hesitancy — 297

Chapter 5

Triumph and betrayal. The early Neo-Assyrian path to empire — 299

- 5.1 Journey’s end — 299
- 5.2 Paths of glory. Mobility and royal visibility in the early Neo-Assyrian period — 301
- 5.3 Things fall apart. Reconsidering core and periphery — 303
- 5.4 Going with the grain. A cultivated path to empire — 307
- 5.5 The king is dead. Reframing ‘Assyrian imperial ideology’ — 308
- 5.6 Triumph and betrayal. A new, competitive paradigm — 310
- 5.7 Empire in spite of Assyria? — 312

Bibliography — 313

Index — 353