

Table of contents

Acknowledgements . . . . .	7
Introduction . . . . .	8
Chapter One: What is decolonization and what is its importance for the study of art? . . . . .	23
Chapter Two: Why does the West study art and why do we make it? . . . . .	49
Chapter Three: How does art relate to other forms of Western knowledge and what is its potential? . . . . .	86
chapter four: How did Philosophy and Theology relate to art and its power? . . . . .	107
Chapter Five: What is the relation between models of history, the arts, and their study? . . . . .	137
Chapter Six: What is art criticism? . . . . .	176
Chapter Seven: How is art studied as an academic discipline? . . . . .	205
Chapter Eight: What is Brazilian art and how has it been studied? . . . . .	255
Bibliography . . . . .	286
About the author . . . . .	295