

Contents

1	Introduction to RF Filters	1
1.1	Need for Filters	1
1.2	Filtering Circuits	2
1.3	Types of Filters	3
1.3.1	Low Pass Filters	3
1.3.2	High Pass Filters	4
1.3.3	Band Pass Filters	4
1.3.4	Band Reject Filters	5
1.4	Application of RF Filters	6
	References	6
2	RF Filter Terms	7
2.1	Introduction	7
2.2	Impedance	8
2.2.1	Definition	8
2.2.2	Load Resistor at Radio Frequency	8
2.2.3	Standard Terminations	10
2.3	RF Transmission Line	10
2.3.1	Definition	10
2.3.2	Types of Transmission Lines	11
2.4	Coaxial Transmission Lines	11
2.4.1	Construction and Characteristics	11
2.4.2	Standard Coaxial Air Lines	12
2.5	Microstrip/Stripline Transmission Lines	13
2.6	Characteristic Impedance	13
2.7	VSWR	14
2.7.1	Maximum Power Transfer	14
2.7.2	Practical Significance of VSWR	15

2.8	VSWR: Open Circuited Load	15
2.8.1	Relationship Between Incident and Reflected Voltages	16
2.8.2	Instantaneous Voltages of Incident, Reflected and Resultant Waves	16
2.8.3	Standing Voltage Wave in Slotted Line	19
2.9	VSWR: Short Circuited Load	20
2.9.1	Relationship Between Incident and Reflected Voltages	20
2.9.2	Instantaneous Voltages of Incident, Reflected and Resultant Waves	20
2.10	VSWR: Matched 50 Ω Load	22
2.11	VSWR: Infinitely Long 50 Ω Cable as Load	23
2.12	VSWR: Partially Matched Load	24
	References	25
3	Requirements of RF Filter	27
3.1	Sub-Contracting Process	27
3.2	Sample Electrical Specifications of Filters	27
3.3	Pass Band	29
3.4	Pass Band Ripple	29
3.5	Insertion Loss	30
3.6	Return Loss	31
3.7	Cut-Off Frequency	32
3.8	Rejection	33
3.9	Graphical Representations	33
3.10	Mechanical Specifications	34
3.10.1	Dimensions (Outline) and Weight	35
3.10.2	Input/Output Connections	36
3.10.3	Finish	36
3.11	Environmental Specifications	36
3.12	Additional Specifications	37
4	RF Filter Design Technologies	39
4.1	Technologies	39
4.2	Lumped RF Filters	40
4.2.1	Low Pass and High Pass Filters	40
4.2.2	Band Pass and Band Reject Filters	41
4.3	Semi-Lumped RF Filters	42
4.3.1	Distributed Capacitance	43
4.3.2	Concept of Semi-Lumped RF Filter	43

4.4	Microwave Cavity Filters	44
4.4.1	Resonance in Microwave Coaxial Cavity	44
4.4.2	Comblin and Iris-Coupled Cavity Filters	45
4.4.3	Power Handling Capacity	46
4.5	Comblin Band Pass Filters.	46
4.5.1	Structure	46
4.5.2	Equivalent Circuit	47
4.5.3	Insertion Loss	48
4.6	Iris-Coupled Band Pass Filters.	48
4.7	Cavity Filters with Dielectric Resonators	49
4.8	Microstrip and Stripline Filters	50
4.8.1	Materials.	50
4.8.2	Basic Microstrip	50
4.8.3	Basic Stripline.	51
4.8.4	Computer Aids for Filter Design	51
	References	52
5	Planning the Design of RF Filters.	55
5.1	Need for Planning Design.	55
5.1.1	Benefits of Value Added Functional Design	56
5.2	Planning Design Phase	57
5.3	Understanding Customer Requirements.	58
5.4	Setting Internal Specifications	58
5.4.1	Need for Internal Specifications.	58
5.4.2	Statistical Method of Setting Internal Specifications.	59
5.4.3	Recommended Internal Specification Limits	61
5.5	Computations of Filter Parameters	62
5.6	Design Drawings and Their Review	63
5.6.1	Sources of Data for Review	63
5.7	Internal Testing and Validation	65
	Reference	65
6	Design of Lumped and Semi-Lumped RF Filters.	67
6.1	Introduction.	67
6.2	Lumped RF Filters.	68
6.2.1	Selection of Filter Parts	68
6.3	Illustrated Design of Lumped RF Filter	69
6.3.1	Computational Steps for Filter Design Parameters	69
6.3.2	Number of Filter Elements	70
6.3.3	Values of Filter Elements	70
6.3.4	Layout Design for Filter Elements	72
6.3.5	End Coupling	73
6.3.6	Tuning of Lumped RF Filter	74

6.4	Illustrated Design of Tubular Filter	74
6.4.1	Number of Filter Elements	75
6.4.2	Values of Tubular Filter Elements	76
6.4.3	Realisation of Tubular Filter	76
6.4.4	Tuning of Tubular Filter	78
6.5	Design of Coils	79
	References	79
7	Design of Microwave Cavity Filters	81
7.1	Introduction.	81
7.2	Comblin Band Pass Filter	82
7.2.1	Cavity Block	82
7.2.2	Resonators	82
7.2.3	Cover Plate	83
7.2.4	Other Piece Parts	83
7.2.5	Materials and Finish of Parts.	84
7.3	Illustrated Design of Comblin Filter	84
7.3.1	Computational Steps for Comblin Filter	85
7.3.2	Number of Filter Sections.	86
7.3.3	Resonator Length.	87
7.3.4	Width and Thickness of Rectangular Resonators	87
7.3.5	Rectangular to Cylindrical Resonators	97
7.3.6	Spacing Between Resonators	98
7.3.7	Length of Cavity	99
7.3.8	Capacitance for Tuning Resonators	99
7.3.9	Height of Cavity	100
7.4	Iris-Coupled Band Pass Filters.	102
7.4.1	Structure and Parts	102
7.5	Illustrated Design of Iris-Coupled Filters	102
7.5.1	Computational Steps for Filter Design Parameters	103
7.5.2	Number of Filter Sections.	104
7.5.3	Diameter and Height of Cavity and Resonators	104
7.5.4	Width, Height and Thickness of Irises	105
7.6	End Coupling in Cavity Band Pass Filters.	111
7.6.1	Probe Coupling	111
7.6.2	Tag Coupling	112
7.7	Tuning of Cavity Band Pass Filters	112
7.7.1	Adjustment Available for Tuning.	112
7.7.2	Tuning Procedure.	113
7.7.3	Tuning of Filters in Frequency and Time Domains	114
	References	114

8	Practical Expertise for Filter Design	115
8.1	Opportunities for Learning	115
8.2	Visual Examination of Assembled PCBs	116
8.3	Preservation of Silver Plated Parts	116
8.4	Precautions for Chip Ceramic Capacitors	116
8.5	Centre Contact Retention in Coaxial Connectors	117
8.6	Mechanical Designs	118
8.7	Tuning of Filters	118
8.8	‘Cut and Try’ Method	119
8.9	Cross Coupling for Steep Roll Down Filters	119
8.10	Air Gap Between Resonator and Tuning Screw	120
8.11	Duplexers	121
8.12	Developing Filter Design Software	121
	References	123
	Appendix A: Modes of Propagation	125
	Appendix B: Statistical Analysis on RF Filter Characteristics	129
	Appendix C: Coaxial Connectors for RF Filters	133
	About the Author	137
	Index	139