Table of Contents

Tables and Figures 15

I. Introduction 17

II. A theoretical framework for Discourse: History, organizations and the World Wide Web 21

II.1. The spatio-temporal dimension in organizational discourse: Rhetorical language and forms 21

II.2. The historical perspective in discourse: Rhetorical forms and language 26

II.3. Temporal structuring of history as a narrative form. The philosophy of history approach 28

II.4. Historical narrative between philosophy of history and organization studies 28

II.5. History as temporally-framed narrative of events and states. The organizational historical approach 29

II.6. A form of historical narrative: Corporate history 31

II.7. The analytical form of history in organizational discourse: Business history 32

II.8. The quest for a historical perspective in organizational studies 34

II.9. Towards a linguistic approach to historical discourse in organizations 35

II.9.1 Organizational Discourse (OD) and Discourse Analysis (DA) 36

II.9.2 Cognitive approaches to organizational discourse 39

II.9.3 Organizational discourse on the WWW: An overview 41

III. Methodology 45

Part I. Constructs of time-space and organizational discourse framing 45

III.1. Cognitive approaches to language and text: An overview 45

III.2. Temporal information in discourse: The aspectual type of situations 47

III.2.1 Grounding situations in time and through space 48

III.2.2 Temporal framing of events 53

III.3. Events conceived in relation to time. Duration and telicity 55

III.3.1 Bounded events 55

III.3.2 Unbounded events 57

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1037900162

digitalisiert durch DEUTSCHE NATIONAL BIBLIOTHEK

III.4. The spatio-temporal framing of events 59
III.4.1. Accomplishments 59
III.4.2 Activities 61
III.4.3 Achievements 61
III.4.4 Acts 62
III.5. Time in terms of viewing space 63
III.5.1 Tense 63
III.5.2 Aspect 65
III.5.3 Absolute and relative time 65
III.6. Mental Spaces and Time 66
III.7. Typologies of Time and Space: Correspondences 70

Part II. Cognitive perspectives for an analysis of organizational discourse on the web 73
III.8. A theoretical framework at the interface between cognition and discourse 73
III.8.1 Discourse as Space (of interaction) 74
III.8.2 Visualizing discourse between Time and Space: The Current Discourse Space 76
III.8.3 Cognitive operations for an understanding of multimodal pages 78
III.9. Construals of thought between Time and Space: Applications in organizational discourse for the web 79
III.9.1 Viewing frame 80
III.9.2 Generality vs. specificity 80
III.9.3 Viewpoint 81
III.9.4 Objectivity vs. subjectivity 81
III.9.5 Mental scanning 83
III.9.6 Fictive motion 85
III.9.7 Windowing of attention 87
III.9.8 Prominence 87
III.9.8.1 Figure and ground 87
III.9.8.2 Profiling 91
III.9.8.3 Trajector/Landmark alignment 96
III.10. Blending Theory and Mental Spaces: A key to understanding Time and Space verbal-visual representations in web discourse 99

IV. Narratives between Time and Space: Corporate Timelines for the web 103
IV.1. The narrative Timeline: An introduction 103
IV.2. The conceptual background of a timeline narrative 107

IV.3. Mappings of the timeline as a spatio-temporal construct 107
IV.4. Unravelling the conceptual schemas 109
IV.4.1 Metaphors of time in space 109
IV.4.2 Mental mappings: The blends 111
IV.5. Timelines in corporate 'historical' discourse for the web 114
IV.6. Spatio-temporal motion: Business progress conceptualized 117
IV.6.1 Kinetic expressions of time and space 117
IV.6.2 Verbal expressions of temporality 121
IV.6.2.1 Logical temporal meaning: Conjunctions and verbal groups 122
IV.6.2.2 Experiential temporal meaning 125

V. Spatio-Temporal discourse structures and meanings in corporate web texts. An integrated model for empirical studies 131
V.1. Introduction 131
V.2. Corpora 132
V.3. Data sources 134
V.4. Signifying practices or semiosis in corporate history discourse for the web 135

VI. Spatio-Temporal meanings for the construction of organizational competence on the web 139
VI.1 Encoding notions of competence through time and space representations 139
VI.2. Competence in organizational history 140
VI.3. Analysis of data and discussion 141
VI.4. Identity, trust, and reputation: A framework for competence in historical discourse 142
VI.5. Textualization of competence: The corporate persona 143
VI.6. Competence transcoded: Structures and thematic chains @ General Electric.com 147
VI.6.1 Multimodal cohesion: Chain 1 149
VI.6.2 Multimodal cohesion: Chain 2 150
VI.6.3 Multimodal cohesion: Chain 3 151
VI.7 Conclusions. 152

VII. Re-constructing time and space through action and 'making' ... 153
VII.1. Introduction 153
VII.2. Organizational memory as culturally embedded 153
VII.3. Spatiotemporality reframed: Companies and the Baltic monolith ... 154

VII.4. Analysis of data and discussion 155
VII.4.1 Features of Corporate History of the 'Baltic' type 155
VII.4.2 Representations of history as objective temporality 156
VII.4.3 The 'Baltic' format 157
VII.4.4 Construals of time 159
VII.4.5 Mapping facts and events through temporal relations 160
VII.4.6 A performative encoding of Time 163
VII.5. Conclusions 165

VIII. General conclusions 167

References 173

Appendices 199
Appendix 1: List of the websites contained in the Fortune Global corpus: Top 100 of the Fortune Global 500 list for the year 2008 199
Appendix 2: List of the websites contained in the Baltic corpus: Baltic Main List and Baltic Secondary Lists of NASDAQ OMX (2010) 201