

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	3
2	Observed and Predicted Climate Change	5
2.1	IPPC Scenarios	5
2.2	Climate Change and Variability	8
2.3	Changes in Storminess and Wind in the Twentieth Century	9
2.3.1	Extra-Tropical Storms	9
2.3.2	Tropical Storms	12
2.4	Changes in Waves in the Twentieth Century	14
2.5	Expected Changes in Storminess and Wind in the Twenty-first Century	17
2.5.1	Extra-Tropical Storms	17
2.5.2	Tropical Cyclones	19
2.6	Expected Changes in Waves in the Twenty-first Century	20
2.7	Changes in Other Parameters that May Impact Ocean Transportation	23
2.7.1	Water Level	23
2.7.2	Sea Ice	24
	References	25
3	Uncertainties	29
3.1	General	29
3.2	Definition of Uncertainties	29
3.3	Uncertainties Related to Wave Climate Projections	31
3.3.1	Effect of Climate Model and Climate Forcing	32
3.3.2	Effect of Downscaling	34
3.3.3	Effect of Extreme Value Model	36
	References	37
4	Summary of Past and Future Climate Change	39

5	Potential Impact of Climate Change on Design of Ship and Offshore Structures	43
5.1	General	43
5.2	Climate Change and Variability and Met-Ocean Design Criteria	43
5.3	Risk-Based Approach Applied in Current Design	44
5.4	Risk-Based Approach Including Climate Changes	48
	References	50
6	Consequences of Wave Climate Change for Tanker Design	53
6.1	Current Design Wave Database for Ship Structures	53
6.2	Hull Girder Collapse in Extreme Sagging Conditions.	55
6.2.1	Set-Up of the Structural Reliability Analysis (SRA)	55
6.2.2	Still Water Bending Moment	58
6.2.3	Wave Bending Moment	58
6.2.4	Combination of Still Water and Wave Bending Moment	60
6.2.5	Ultimate Bending Moment Capacity	60
6.2.6	Results of Structural Reliability Analysis.	61
	References	64
7	Conclusions	67
	References	69