

Table of Contents

Preface.....	1
From Expressionism to Experiment – Directions and Tendencies in New Music	3
Arnold Schoenberg – Revolutionary, Humanist and Visionary	11
“Music is not to be Decorative; it is to be True” – Towards an Aesthetic of the Second Viennese School	17
The Problem of “German Music”	23
The Fate of Arnold Schoenberg and Alban Berg after 1933	29
Two Unknown Letters by Schoenberg and Berg.....	37
Beethoven and the Schoenberg School.....	41
Principles of Vocal Composition	47
Schoenberg’s Gurrelieder	51
The Melodramas of Pierrot lunaire	59
“God’s Eternity Opposes the Transience of Idols” – On Schoenberg’s Moses and Aron	65
Nationalism and Folklorism.....	71
Nikos Skalkottas – A Schoenberg Pupil in Berlin	79
Beyond Schoenberg and Debussy – Nikos Skalkottas’s 32 Piano Pieces	85
A Conversation with Luigi Nono.....	97
Olivier Messiaen’s “Theological Music”	101
Pierre Boulez’s Masterpiece Le Marteau sans maître	105

Fascinated by the Music of Ligeti.....	109
Ligeti's Hölderlin-Phantasien . A Letter from the Composer	113
Iridescent Sound.....	117
"Folklore in Serious Music is a Lie" – Ligeti's Relationship with Béla Bartók	125
Multicultural Phenomena in the New Music	133
"A Music of the Whole Earth, All Countries and Races": Karlheinz Stockhausen's Utopia of World Music	137
The Philosophy of Time and Pluralistic Thought of Bernd Alois Zimmermann	143
Alfred Schnittke and Polystylism	147
And Always for a Better World – Approaches to Hans Werner Henze	153
So-called Postmodernism.....	161
"No Artist Works at a Distance from Humanity" – In Praise of Wolfgang Rihm	167
Afterword	171
Notes	173
Selective Bibliography.....	205
List of Music Examples and Illustrations	213
Plates	215
Index.....	229