

LINER NOTES

DAY 1: ARRIVAL ... 9

Four people—The story of your own network—The Möbius strip of production and reflection—Can one medium incorporate others?—Bertolt Brecht's theory of Learning Plays—Performative self-observation—Lady Midday and Richard Sennett—Books about books—Reading the title—Possible subheadings—Covers without titles

DAY 2: SORTING ... 23

Should books be sorted alphabetically or according to their practical value?—Sorting according to content and themes—The system used by the Werkplaats Typografie Arnhem—Six types of book typography—Encyclopaedia of Errors—Statistics on the colour of book covers—Prices—Print run—Production costs—Five categories of ragged typesetting—Formats—On books that were printed at night

DAY 3: ART CATALOGUES ... 33

On the mobility of books—About the circulation of symbols—Can context be transported?—Locations of art—Exhibition catalogues—Artists' monographs—Places of representation—One thought on 200 pages—How can concepts be presented?—Can the work of a book designer be compared to that of a translator?—Is a catalogue the continuation of artistic work with other means?—Designing judgements—Criticism from criticism—Economies of time—On co-operation

46 Markus Dreßen

51 Nicola Reiter

DAY 4: MATERIAL ... 61

Formulating artistic statements via the materiality of the body of the book—Paper choice—Alternating paper—Shortened pages—On aspects that constitute meaning and aspects that distinguish meaning in the choice of paper—On the publication The most Beautiful Swiss Books, 2004-2006—Hermeneutics of paper—On flexible forms of binding—On the rhetoric of refinement—The trend towards gesture—How a verdict on the value of a book is formed

CONTENT

74 Anna Lena von Helldorf

79 Bettina Mönch

DAY 5: ATTITUDES ... 85

Andrea Wittek's Deadline films—Acting out—The principle of discipline—The principle of flexibility—The principle of improvisation—Multitasking and free time—Post-Fordian production processes—Kairos/Metis: The wisdom of the moment—Moderation as a model—Understanding as a concept—On the fuzzy edge of rules—On flexible fields of orientation—Why does one work better without a plan?

DAY 6: REFERENCES ... 95

Break—Reflexive production (a production from products)—Sources of inspiration—Quotation, sampling, mixing, copying, covering—Traces of ghosts—Letters to friends—On the general practice of appropriation—Recourse—Feedback—Reference—Quoting out of love—Variation, repetition—The book as a mosaic of quotations—The photocopier, the scanner, the digital camera—How to quote concepts—Vladimir Sorokin's Meta-discursivity—Copyright vs. Creative Commons—Break

113 Jan Wenzel

118 Jakob Kirch

LINER NOTES

DAY 7: DESIGNERS AS AUTHORS ... 129

On applied autonomy—The auteur film as a field of programmatic, aesthetic and economic debates—Politique des auteurs—What is an auteur book?—Crossmapping—Found-footage books—Authorship means gathering—On cinematographic language—Walburga Wiedemann's Positio—Should books be planned like a film script?—The polymorphic form of producing—Connecting the unexpected

153 Annette Lux

157 Helmut Völter

DAY 8: THEORY ... 163

On the status of the designer's work—Suppose we had produced as human beings—On appropriateness—On the organisation of book production—What does order from disorder mean?—On character spacing, word spacing, line spacing—Which font suits Thomas Pynchon?—What is a typophoto—Paper Movie—On the possibility of saving money by doing without illustrations—How am I going to manage this now?—Books as a confident commodity—How many ghosts can fit into a single book?

176 Till Gathmann

181 Christopher Jung & Tobias Wenig

DAY 9: TYPOGRAPHY ... 187

Typographical positions, typographical schools—The topicality of Jan Tschichold—Normative typography vs. singular typography—On the correct spacing between 'g' and 'y'—On the historicity of signs—Baskerville and Times—Is typography climate research?—Postscript revolution—How many fonts are enough?

CONTENT

DAY 10: PRODUCING ... 199

On the book in the plural—More about choosing the right paper—On beautiful books—On changes in the media of knowledge and information—A new generation of book designers—The climate of Leipzig—Walter Tiemann vs. Jan Tschichold—Albert Kapr, Hildegard Korer, Walter Schiller, Gert Wunderlich—The Nineties—Cut—Desktop Publishing—Cut—Ruedi Baur, Günter Karl Bose, Detlef Fiedler & Daniela Haufe, Volker Pfüller—Office yoga—It was their job—Bibliography

200 Günter Karl Bose (Epilogue)