

Table of Contents

Abbreviations	10
Introduction	11
Chapter I: The Case for Contested Director Elections
1 Introduction	18
2 Agency problems and proposed solutions	19
2.1 Agency problems in firms and corporate governance	19
2.2 Agency problems in democracies and public governance	22
3 The proposal: contested director elections	24
3.1 Contested director elections	24
3.2 The current practice of electing directors	26
3.3 Corporate governance reform	30
4 In defense of contested director elections	32
4.1 The shortcomings of traditional solutions	33
4.2 Public choice problems	39
4.3 Intermediaries and agency chains	46
5 Conclusions	49
Chapter II: Free Choice of Pension Funds and Shareholder Voice
1 Introduction	52
2 Corporate governance and shareholder behavior	53
2.1 The agency problem and corporate governance	53
2.2 Three investment strategies	56
3 The role of institutional investors	60
3.1 The rise of institutional ownership	60
3.2 Institutional activism in theory	62
3.3 Institutional activism in practice	63
3.4 A critique of institutional activism	65
4 Free choice of pension funds	66
4.1 Traditional arguments	66
4.2 The free choice hypothesis	68
4.3 Possible caveats	70

5	Universal ownership and free choice of pension funds	77
5.1	The universal ownership hypothesis	77
5.2	A critique of the universal ownership hypothesis	79
5.3	The interrelationship between universal ownership and free choice of pension funds	80
6	Conclusions	83
 Chapter III: Corporate Vote Buying: The New Separation of Ownership and Control
1	Introduction	85
2	Literature review and regulatory responses	87
2.1	One share – one vote	87
2.2	Vote buying as a blessing	89
2.3	Vote buying as a curse	92
2.4	Regulatory responses	94
3	Critique	95
3.1	Reciprocal and non-reciprocal vote buying	95
3.2	The prisoner's dilemma in the case of reciprocal vote buying	97
3.3	The prisoner's dilemma in the case of non-reciprocal vote buying	99
3.4	Possible ways out of the prisoner's dilemma	101
3.5	The role of the profit source	102
4	Extensions	107
4.1	Indexation	107
4.2	Expressive voting	109
4.3	The motivation crowding effect	113
4.4	Endogenous incentive effects	116
5	Conclusions	118
 Overall Summary and Conclusions		120
References		133
Annex A: Proxy Voting		143
Annex B: Securities Lending		154
Annex C: Expressive Voting		156

List of Figures

Introduction:

Figure 1: Three ways to delegate monitoring and voting power	12
--	----

Chapter I:

Figure 2: Corporate governance mechanisms	21
Figure 3: Analogous governance structures in democracies and corporations	23
Figure 4: Face value and market value of shares required to put items on the agenda	28
Figure 5: Director elections in SMI companies 2003-2008	29
Figure 6: The failure of exit	34
Figure 7: The markets for politicians and directors	39

Chapter II:

Figure 8: Free choice of pension funds as a compromise	70
--	----

Chapter III:

Figure 9: Reciprocal vote buying (LEPO-against-underlying transaction)	96
Figure 10: Non-reciprocal vote buying (stock-minus-LEPO transaction)	97
Figure 11: A simple game-theoretic model	98
Figure 12: A simple game-theoretic model (formal)	98
Figure 13: The prisoner's dilemma	99
Figure 14: Expressive voting	112
Figure 15: Expressive voting (formal)	112

Overall summary and conclusions:

Figure 16: Empowerment through delegation	124
---	-----

Annex C:

Figure 17: Expressive voting with two types of expressive returns	156
Figure 18: Expressive voting in the case of one share – one vote	157