

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Foreword	xi
Peter Vorderer, University of Mannheim, Germany
Introduction	1
Hua Wang, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York, USA

Part I Meaning, Happiness, and Flourishing

Chapter One: In Search of the Good Life	7
Stacey Spiegel, Parallel World Labs, Canada
Heli Tuomi Carlile, Parallel World Labs, Canada
Chapter Two: The Good Life: Selfhood and Virtue Ethics in the Digital Age.	17
Charles M. Ess, University of Oslo, Norway
Chapter Three: Eudaimonia: Mobile Communication and Social Flourishing	31
Rich Ling, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Chapter Four: Meaningfulness and Entertainment:
Fiction and Reality in the Land of Evolving Technologies 45
Mary Beth Oliver, Pennsylvania State University, USA
Julia K. Woolley, California Polytechnic State University, USA

Chapter Five: Media Policy for Happiness: A Case Study of Bhutan 61
Peng Hwa Ang, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Part II Perceptions, Connections, and Protection

Chapter Six: Communication and Perceptions of the Quality of Life 81
Leo W. Jeffres, Cleveland State University, USA
Kimberly A. Neuendorf, Cleveland State University, USA
David Atkin, University of Connecticut, USA

Chapter Seven: Tuning in versus Zoning out: The Role of Ego Depletion in Selective Exposure to Challenging Media 107
Allison Eden, VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands
Tilo Hartmann, VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands
Leonard Reinecke, Johannes Gutenberg University Mainz, Germany

Chapter Eight: The Secret to Happiness: Social Capital,
Trait Self-Esteem, and Subjective Well-Being 127
Jian Raymond Rui, Texas Tech University, USA
Michael A. Stefanone, University at Buffalo,
The State University of New York, USA

Chapter Nine: Modeling Communication in a Research Network:
Implications for the Good Networked Life 143
Diana Mok, University of Western Ontario, Canada
Barry Wellman, University of Toronto, Canada
Dimitrina Dimitrova, University of Toronto, Canada

Chapter Ten: Communicating Online Safety:
Protecting Our Good Life on the Net. 161
Robert LaRose, Michigan State University, USA
Saleem Alhabash, Michigan State University, USA
Mengtian Jiang, Michigan State University, USA
Ruth Shillair, Michigan State University, USA
Hsin-yi Sandy Tsai, Michigan State University, USA
Shelia R. Cotten, Michigan State University, USA
Nora J. Rifon, Michigan State University, USA

Part III Challenges, Opportunities, and Transformation

Chapter Eleven: Communicative Figurations of the Good Life: Ambivalences of the Mediatization of Homelessness and Transnational Migrant Families	181
Andreas Hepp, University of Bremen, Germany
Peter Lunt, University of Leicester, UK
Maren Hartmann, University of the Arts Berlin, Germany
Chapter Twelve: Reimagining the Good Life with Disability: Communication, New Technology, and Humane Connections	197
Meryl Alper, University of Southern California, USA
Elizabeth Ellcessor, Indiana University, USA
Katie Ellis, Curtin University, Australia
Gerard Michael Goggin, University of Sydney, Australia
Chapter Thirteen: The 20th Anniversary of the Digital Divide: Challenges and Opportunities for Communication and the Good Life	213
Susan B. Kretchmer, Partnership for Progress on the Digital Divide
Joy Pierce, University of Utah, USA
Laura Robinson, Santa Clara University, USA
Chapter Fourteen: Liberating Structures: Engaging Everyone to Build a Good Life Together	233
Henri Lipmanowicz, Liberating Structures Press, USA
Arvind Singhal, University of Texas at El Paso, USA
Keith McCandless, Liberating Structures Press, USA
Hua Wang, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York, USA
Contributors	247
Author Index	259
Subject Index	267