

Table of Contents

Volume I: The Evolving Concept of Trauma

Preface	3
Chapter 1: A Horrible Kind of Melancholia	9
Trauma Through the Ages	12
Traumatic Melancholia	13
Chapter 2: Traumatic Hysteria and Grand Hysteria	23
Suffering from a Dry Womb	23
Suffering from Black Bile, the Devil, or Demons	24
Suffering from the Whole Body	25
Suffering from the Emotional Mind	26
Suffering from Sensibility Gone Awry	27
Suffering from Abuse and Neglect, or from Imaginary Movements of the Womb?	28
Suffering from tare nerveuse , agents provocateurs , and Fixed Ideas	30
Suffering from Adverse Events, Vehement Emotions, and Dissociation of the Personality	33
Suffering from Hypnoid States Containing Reminiscences of Sexual Abuse	35
Suffering from the Infantile Sexual Body, Inner Conflicts, and Wish-Fulfilling Fantasies	36
Suffering from Conflicts Between Eros and Thanatos	38
Suffering from a Confusion of Tongues Between Children and Adults	39
Back to Traumatic Melancholia	41
Chapter 3: Traumatic Neurosis and Traumatic Hysteria	43
Suffering from Physical and Mental Concussion	43
Suffering from Bad Morals and a Weak Will	46
Suffering from Ringing Bells of Danger and a Sensitive Temperament	49
Suffering from Instinctive Defenses	50
Suffering from Apparently Normal and Emotional Parts of the Personality	55
Suffering from Neurochemicals	57
Suffering from Childhood Traumatization, Particularly Sexual Abuse	58

Chapter 4: Dissociation of the Personality as a Core Feature of Trauma . . .	63
PTSD: Traumatic Melancholia or Hysteria? Traumatic Neurosis or Dissociative Disorder?	64
Chapter 5: Dissociation of the Personality in PTSD	84
The First-Person Perspective	86
The Quasi-Second-Person Perspective	87
The Second-Person Perspective	89
The Third-Person Perspective	90
PTSD and Dissociation of the Personality: Some Hypotheses	93
Developmental Trauma Disorder: Suffering from Much More than the Primary Symptoms of PTSD	109
Chapter 6: Adverse Events and Their Consequences	113
The A Criterion of ASD and PTSD in DSM-IV and DSM-5	113
The Proposed A Criterion of Developmental Trauma Disorder: Too Narrow? . . .	120
Causes Among Causes: 'Risk Factors' for Trauma-Related Disorders	121
Adverse Childhood Events, Dissociative Symptoms, and Dissociation of the Personality	128
Hysteria from 1980: DSM-III, DSM-IV, and DSM-5	139
Chapter 7: The Capricious Historical Understanding of Traumatic Melancholia and Hysteria: Part I. Psychological Considerations	147
Trauma: A Natural Phenomenon or A Cultural Invention?	147
Trauma: Exogenesis, Endogenesis, or Both?	154
A Harsh World and the General Problem of Realization	158
Professional and Societal Thought as an Exogenetic Influence on Trauma	159
Chapter 8: The Capricious Historical Understanding of Traumatic Melancholia and Hysteria: Part II. Philosophical Considerations	169
Philosophical Materialism: You Are a Body with a Brain	170
Philosophical Dualism: You Are Two	172
Philosophical Identity Theory: Matter Is More Equal than Mind	175
Reductive Physicalism: You Are Your Brain	175
Strong Eliminativism: You Are Not	178
Behaviorism: You Are a Black Box	179
Evolutionary Perspectives: You Are Another Mammal	180
Philosophical Idealism: You Are Your Dream	182
Autoepistemic Limitation: Deep Inside, You Are a Stranger to Yourself	185
Stuck in a Nasty Dilemma?	186
Spinoza's Philosophical Monism: You Are One	187

Phenomenology: You Live	188
Neurophenomenology: Finding You in a Dance of Subject and Object	189
The Trinity of the Brain, the Body, and the Environment: You Are Embrained, Embodied, and Embedded	190
Scientific and Clinical Dancing with the Traumatized	194
Conclusion	198
Chapter 9: The Concept of Trauma and Derivate Concepts: Symbols and Meaning	201
Icons, Indexes, and Symbols	203
Trauma as ‘Traumatic Events’: Overinclusiveness and Underinclusiveness	212
Trauma as Injury	214
Chapter 10: The Concept of Event: Ontological, Causal, and Epistemological Considerations	217
Ontology and Causality	217
The Concepts of ‘Event’ and ‘Trauma’: Epistemic Considerations	230
Embedded Events as Action-Dependent Epistemic Units: A Summary	248
Conclusions	250
Chapter 11: Trauma and Derivative Concepts: Definitions	253
General Ontological Considerations	253
General Epistemological Considerations	254
Traumatic Experience	254
Traumatic (Embedded) Event	260
Traumatic Memory	266
Traumatizing (Embedded) Event	269
Trauma	270
Conclusions	272

Volume II: The Concept and Facts of Dissociation in Trauma

Chapter 12: Consciousness and Self-Consciousness in Dissociative Disorders	277
Terminology	278
The Person Perspectives of Dissociative Parts of the Personality	289
The Mereological Fallacy	291
Metzinger’s Self-Model Theory of Subjectivity and Critique	292
A Catalogue of Consciousness and Multiple PCSs and PCIRs in DID	306
Minimal Constraints on Consciousness and an Overview of Constraints on Consciousness	325

Minimal Constraints for Consciousness and DID 326

Multiple PCSs and PCIRs in Other Dissociative Disorders than DID 326

Alterations in Consciousness in Dissociative Disorders, Other Mental Disorders, and Mental Health 336

Summary and Discussion 340

Chapter 13: Dissociation in Trauma: A New Definition and Comparison with Previous Formulations 347

The Problem 347

The Proposed Definition 349

Elucidation 349

Limitations of Other Definitions of Dissociation in Trauma 361

Discussion and Conclusions 370

Chapter 14: Criticisms of the Proposed Definition and Rejoinder 373

A Rejoinder 373

According to One or Several Reviewers, Our Definition 374

Conclusion 377

Chapter 15: Trauma Models Versus Sociocognitive and Fantasy Models of Major DID 379

TSDP and Dynamic Causation 379

Sociocognitive and Fantasy Models of Dissociation/Dissociative Disorders 382

A Comparison of the Empirical Evidence for Sociocognitive and Fantasy Models of Dissociative Symptoms and Disorders 384

Chapter 16: Dissociation of the Personality in a Biopsychosocial Perspective 415

Criteria for Conscious and Self-Conscious Dissociative Subsystems or Parts of the Personality 416

The Study of Personality 417

Personality and Action Systems 419

Dissociative Parts and Action Systems 422

EP: Primarily Mediated by Actions Systems of Mammalian Defense and Attachment Cry 424

ANP: Primarily Mediated by Action Systems for Managing Daily Life 424

A Dimension of Trauma-Related Structural Dissociation 424

Dissociation and Disorganized Attachment 426

Similarities Between the Human and Animal Defensive System 426

Psychobiological Interferences with Integration of ANP and EP 427

Different Individuals – Different Biopsychosocial Reactions to Perceived Threat . . 430

Arousal, Polyvagal Theory, and Dissociation 431

Chapter 17: Dissociation of the Personality: Functional Biopsychosocial Findings I 437

Different Reaction Patterns in Different Survivors 438

Different Biopsychosocial Reactions for Different Types of Dissociative Parts . . . 441

Chapter 18: Dissociation of the Personality: Functional Biopsychosocial Findings II 449

Subjective and Psychophysiological Reactions of Authentic and Simulated ANPs and Fragile EPs to an Adverse Personal Memory Script 450

Neural Reactions of Authentic and Simulated ANPs and EPs to an Adverse Personal Memory Script 451

Memory Transfer Between Dissociative Parts 455

Subliminal Exposure to Perceived Threat 457

ANP and Fragile EP in DID: What Catches the Eye? 464

ANP and Fragile EP in DID in Response to Rest Instructions 467

Profound Overlap in Brain Area Activation in Hyperaroused (Fragile EP) and Nonaroused or Hypoaroused (ANP/Fragile EP) Patients with PTSD and DID 476

Chapter 19: Dissociation of the Personality: Structural Brain Abnormalities 487

Gray Matter Abnormalities 489

White Matter Abnormalities 499

Conclusion 501

Chapter 20: The Trinity of Trauma in Survivors, Perpetrators, Families, Psychiatry, and Society 503

Perpetrators 506

Partners in Crime 522

Medicine, Psychology, and Psychiatry 524

Society 533

Chapter 21: 150 Concise Propositions 539

Matter and Mind: One Substance, Two Attributes, Countless Modi 539

Subject and Object 540

Events 540

Science and Science-Driven Practice 540

Will and Action or Will Systems 541

Action 542

Enaction and Meaning 543

Causation 544

Personality 544

Person Perspectives 544

The Terms Traumatic and Traumatizing Experiences and Events	545
Trauma and Dissociation in Trauma	546
The Concept of Dissociation in Trauma	548
The Spectrum of Dissociative Disorders	549
The Sociocognitive Model and Trauma Models of DID	550
Costs	550
The General Trinity of Trauma	550
References	553
Author Index	613
Subject Index	618