

Table of contents

Acknowledgements.....	9
Preface.....	11
Summary and Overview .....	15
i.   Argument summary.....	15
ii.  Argument overview .....	16
Part A. Theoretical Prerequisites
Chapter 1. Formal solutions of identity: the substantive identity.....	21
1.1 Chapter overview .....	21
1.2 Linguistics in the age of science .....	21
1.3 Formal identity: objects of mathematics .....	23
1.4 Network identity: objects of human conceptualisation .....	24
1.5 Identity as a human-scale concept.....	27
1.6 Chapter summary .....	29
Chapter 2. Non-formal solutions of identity: identity as process.....	31
2.1 Chapter overview .....	31
2.2 The nominalist tradition: contingent existence.....	31
2.3 Ontological contingency as a feature of counterfactual thought.....	34
2.4 Plato's idea : entity or process?.....	36
2.5 Identity as item in inventory and blended concept .....	39
2.6 Chapter summary .....	43

Chapter 3. Identity and the present. Towards a cognitive model of the present.....	45
3.1 Chapter overview .....	45
3.2 Aristotle: reason, induction and deduction .....	45
3.3 Plotinus and Saint Augustine: knowledge and morality .....	51
3.4 Vox and eidos : time-point matrix and duration-matrix .....	64
3.5 Chapter summary .....	67

Part B. Descriptive Applications

Chapter 4. 'Innovation' and 'creation' within the Cognitive Model of the Present.....	73
4.1 Chapter overview .....	73
4.2 The Cognitive Model of the Present by Vyvyan Evans.....	74
4.3 Introducing the corpus study of 'innovation' and 'creation' .....	77
4.4 Survey of British National Corpus 2007 .....	78
4.4.1 Processes and things .....	78
4.4.2 Verb forms.....	79
4.4.3 Nominal forms.....	81
Statement (1).....	82
4.4.4 Nominals and verbs: distributive proportion .....	82
Statement (2).....	83
Statement (3).....	83
4.5 Dictionary entries of 'create' and 'innovate' word families .....	83
Statement (4).....	83
Statement (5).....	84
4.6 Two working hypotheses.....	84
4.7 Analysis of 'innovation' and 'creation' as concepts .....	85
4.7.1 Causality and temporality: BNC samples.....	86
4.7.2 Speculating about the limit options in the conceptualisation process.....	87
4.8 Verifying the configurationality hypothesis.....	89
4.8.1 Configurationality and counterfactuality.....	90
4.8.2 Conceptual blending account of 'innovation' and 'creation' concepts.....	91
4.9 Chapter Summary .....	92

Chapter 5. ‘Innovation’ and ‘creation’ as principles in institutional management and aesthetics .....	95
5.1 Chapter overview .....	95
5.2 Towards a synthesis: summary of corpus findings .....	95
5.3 Example 1. Conceptualisation as an aspect of institutional management in the policy-making process .....	96
5.4 Example 2. Conceptualisation as an aesthetic aspect of literary texts.....	103
5.5 Example 3. Conceptualisation as an aesthetic aspect of literary texts (continued).....	107
5.6 Example 4. Conceptualisations as an aesthetic aspect of sacred art.....	110
5.7 Chapter summary .....	113
 Chapter 6. Cognitive models of ‘innovation’ and ‘creation,’ human thought and perceptual modality.....	115
6.1 Chapter overview .....	115
6.2 Determinist results: open-ended and closed reason.....	115
6.3 Perceptual modality .....	120
6.4 Chapter summary .....	123
 General Conclusion .....	125
 Part C. References
 References.....	129
Primary Sources.....	129
Pre-modern.....	129
Modern .....	129
The Bible .....	130
Secondary Sources.....	130
 List of Figures.....	135