Contents

1	Skeletal Structures	1
	Overview	1
	The Model	1
	Introduction	1
	Bones	2
	Cartilage	4
	Tendons and Ligaments	4
	Articulations	5
	Mobility	8
	Artificial Joints	11
	The Hand	12
	The Spinal Column	14
	The Spinal Disk	18
	Notes	20
	Summary	21
	Glossary	22
	References	25
	Further Reading	26
2	Muscles	27
	Overview	27
	The Model	27
	Introduction	27
	Muscle Architecture	28
	Agonist-Antagonist, Co-contraction	28
	Components of Muscle	29
	Muscle Contraction	32
	Relation Between Muscle Length and Tension	33
	The "Motor Unit"	35
	Muscle Twitch	36
	Muscle Fatigue	36
	Activities of Entire Muscles	38
	Control of Muscle	38
	Muscle Fiber Types	39

vii

viii Contents

Internal Transmission Body (Segment) Strength Exerting Strength with the Hand Static and Dynamic Exertions Static Strength Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Strength of Muscle and Body Segment	39
Body (Segment) Strength Exerting Strength with the Hand Static and Dynamic Exertions Static Strength Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engincering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			41
Exerting Strength with the Hand Static and Dynamic Exertions Static Strength Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes. Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes. Summary		Internal Transmission	41
Static Strength Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways		Body (Segment) Strength	42
Static Strength Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback. Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes. Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes. Summary		Exerting Strength with the Hand	43
Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Static and Dynamic Exertions	46
Dynamic Strength Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Static Strength	46
Regulation of Strength Exertion. Feedforward Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes. Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes. Summary			47
Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			49
Feedback Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Feedforward	49
Measuring Muscle Strength The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			51
The "Maximal Voluntary Effort" Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			51
Measurement Opportunities Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			51
Strength Measurement Devices The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			52
The Strength Test Protocol Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		* -	54
Designing for Body Strength Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			54
Proper Statistical Use of Strength Data Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			56
Designing for Hand Strength Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			57
Using Tables of Exerted Torques and Forces Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			57
Designing for Foot Strength Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			60
Notes Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		•	61
Summary Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			67
Glossary References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			68
References Further Reading 3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		•	69
Further Reading Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		•	73
3 Neuromuscular Control Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			74
Overview The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		runner Reading	74
The Model Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary	3	Neuromuscular Control	75
Introduction Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Overview	75
Organization of the Nervous System By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		The Model	75
By Function By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Introduction	75
By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		Organization of the Nervous System	76
By Location The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		By Function	76
The Central Nervous System Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			76
Sensors and Effectors of the Peripheral Nervous System The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		The Central Nervous System	77
The Nervous Pathways The Neuron Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			78
The Neuron. Transmission of Nerve Signals. Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions. Notes. Summary		The Nervous Pathways	81
Transmission of Nerve Signals Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary		The Neuron	82
Control of Muscle Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes Summary			85
Ergonomic Engineering to Facilitate Control Actions Notes			86
Notes			87
Summary		•	91
•			91
Giossary		Glossary	92
•			96
			96

Contents

4	Anthromechanics	97
	Overview	97
	The Model	97
	Introduction	97
	Stress and Strain	98
	Mechanical Bases	99
	Static Equilibrium	100
	Dynamic Analyses	104
	Anthropometric Inputs	105
	Links and Joints	105
	Body Volumes	106
	Inertial Properties	110
	Lean Body Mass	114
	Locating the Center of Mass	114
	Moments of Inertia	115
	Kinematic Chain Models	115
	Notes	118
	Summary	119
	Glossary	120
	References	120
		124
	Further Reading	124
	Journals: For Example	124
5	Respiration	125
3	•	125
	Overview	125
		125
	Introduction	125
	Architecture	128
	Functions	120
	Respiratory Volumes	130
	Measurement Opportunities	•
	Summary	130
	Glossary	131
	References and Further Reading	131
,	Charaltation	133
6	Circulation	1.3.3
	0 :
	Overview	133
	The Model	133 133
	The Model	133 133 134
	The Model	133 133 134 134
	The Model Introduction Body Fluids Blood	133 133 134 134 134
	The Model Introduction Body Fluids Blood Blood Groups	133 133 134 134 134 135
	The Model Introduction Body Fluids Blood Blood Groups Functions	133 133 134 134 134 135 135
	The Model Introduction Body Fluids Blood Blood Groups Functions The Lymphatic System	133 134 134 134 135 135
	The Model Introduction Body Fluids Blood Blood Groups Functions	133 133 134 134 134 135 135

x Contents

	The Heart as Pump	137
	Cardiac Output	139
	The Capillary Bed	140
	Hemodynamics	143
	Blood Vessels	143
	Regulation of Circulation	145
	Measurement Opportunities	146
	Summary	146
	Glossary	147
	References and Further Reading	149
	•
7	Metabolism	151
	Overview	151
	The Model: The "Human Energy Machine"	151
	Introduction	152
	Human Metabolism and Work	152
	Energy Liberation in the Body	154
	Energetic Reactions	155
	The Pathways of Digestion	155
	Energy Content of Nutrients	157
	Absorption and Assimilation	160
	Energy Release	161
	Aerobic Metabolism of Glucose	161
	Anaerobic Metabolism of Glucose	161
	Metabolism of Carbohydrate	162
	Metabolism of Fat and Protein	162
	Energy Storage	163
	Energy for Muscle Work	164
	Release of Energy During a Strong Muscular Effort	165
	Aerobic and Anaerobic Work	167
	Energy Use and Body Weight	168
	Notes	169
	Summary	169
	Glossary	170
	References	171
	Further Reading	171
8	Exercise and Work	173
	Overview	173
	The Model	173
	Introduction	173
	Capacity for Physical Exercise and Work	174
	Diet and Weight Observation	174
	Direct Calorimetry	175
	Indirect Calorimetry	176

Contents xi

	Standardized Tests	178
	Bicycle, Treadmill and Step Tests	178
	Challenges	179
	Energy Requirements at Work	180
	Procedures to Catalogue Metabolic Requirements	181
	Techniques to Estimate Energy Requirements	184
	Light or Heavy Jobs?	187
	Overall Changes in Body Functions in Response to Work Loads	188
	Fatigue	189
	Human Engineering/Ergonomics	190
	Notes	191
	Summary	192
	Appendix 1: Techniques of Indirect Calorimetry	193
	Appendix 2: Rating the Perceived Effort	194
	Borg RPE Scale	195
	Borg CR-10 Scale	196
	Glossary	196
	References	197
	Further Reading	198
9	Thermal Environment	199
	Overview	199
	The Model	199
	Introduction	199
	The Human Body as a Thermo-Regulated System	200
	The Energy Balance	200
	Energy Exchanges with the Environment	201
	Radiation Heat Exchange	201
	Conduction Heat Exchange	203
	Convection Heat Exchange	203
	Evaporation Heat Exchange	204
	Heat Balance	205
	Regulation and Sensation of Temperature	206
	Achieving Thermal Homeostasis	207
	Measuring Body Temperatures	208
	Assessing the Thermal Environment	210
	Ambient Temperature	210
	Air Humidity	210
	Air Movement	210
	Radiant Heat	211
	The Combined Effects of Climate Factors	211
	Reactions of the Body to Hot Environments	212
	Redistribution of Blood	212
	Reduction of Muscle Activities

xii Contents

	Indications of Heat Strain	213
	Acclimatization to Heat	215
	Reactions of the Body to Cold Environments	216
	Redistribution of Blood	216
	Increased Metabolic Heat Production	217
	How Cold Does it Feel?	218
	Indications of Cold Strain	219
	Acclimatization to Cold	220
	Working in Heat or Cold	221
	Effects of Heat	221
	Effects of Cold	223
	Designing the Thermal Environment	225
	Notes	228
	Summary	228
	Glossary	229
	References	231
	Further Reading	232
10	Body Rhythms and Work Schedules	233
	Overview	233
	The Model	233
	Introduction	233
	Menstrual Cycle	235
	Circadian Rhythms	235
	Models of Oscillatory Control	237
	Individual Diurnal Performance Rhythms	238
	Sleep	239
	Sleep Phases	239
	Sleep Loss and Tiredness	242
	Normal Sleep Requirements	243
	Sleep Deprivation and Prolonged Periods of Work	244
	Performing Tasks	244
	Incurring Performance Decrement and Recovering From It	245
	Shift Work	245
	The Development of Shift Work	246
	Shift Systems	246
	Flextime	249
	Compressed Workweeks	249
	Suitable Shift Systems	251
	Health and Well-Being	252
	Performance	253
	Social Interactions	253
	How to Select a Suitable Work System	254
	Shift Length	256
	Notes	259

Contents xiii

	Summary	259
	Glossary	260
	References	261
	Further Reading	263
11	Engineering Anthropometry	265
	Overview	265
	The Model	265
	Introduction	265
	Measurement Techniques	266
	Terminology and Standardization	266
	Classical Measuring Techniques	267
	New Measurement Methods	268
	Body Typology	274
	Anthropometric Data Sets	275
	Normality	275
	Variability	276
	Correlations	279
	Body Proportions	280
	Variability of Anthropometric Data	283
	Data Management	283
	Secular Variations	285
	Intra-individual Variations	287
	Inter-individual Variations	287
	Changing Populations	288
	Available Body Size Data	292
	How To Get Missing Data	292
	Finding Data in the Literature	292
	Conducting an Anthropometric Survey	295
	Statistical Body Models	305
	Deducing Unknown Values from Existing Data	306
	Using Anthropometric Data in Design	310
	The "Normative" Adult	310
	Body Positions and Motions at Work	311
	Designing to Fit the Body	313
	Determining Tariffs	315
	Determining the Workspace of the Hands	315
	Human-Centered Engineering	315
	Notes	318
	Summary	321
	Glossary	321
	References	327
	Further Reading	330
	2 arms reason from the second
Inc	lex	331