

	Axel Klausmeier Monika Grütters Michael Müller	Foreword: Commemoration Needs A Place 7 Greeting 12 Greeting 13
	Gerhard Sälter Maria Nooke	The SED, its Wall and GDR Society 17 Bernauer Strasse – A Site of the Berlin Wall with Historical Significance 22
Open-Air Exhibition and Memorial Grounds at Bernauer Strasse	Chapter 1 Chapter 2 Chapter 3 Gerhard Sälter Chapter 4 Chapter 5 Maria Nooke Chapter 6 Chapter 7	The Wall and the Border Strip 34 Human Suffering 46 Rebuilding the Border Fortifications 72 Surveillance of the Wall: The Example of Bernauer Strasse 94 Escapes and Escape Agents 100 The Victims 120 The Victims at the Berlin Wall 130 The Wall in the Cold War 134 The Fall of the Berlin Wall at the Bernauer Strasse 150
	Günther Schlusche	From the Fall of the Wall to the Berlin Wall Memorial: How an Urban Commemorative Space was Created 164
Permanent Exhibition in the Documentation Center on Bernauer Strasse 111	Chapter 1 Kay Kufeke Chapter 2 Chapter 3 Susanne Muhle Chapter 4 Elke Kimmel Chapter 5 Cornelia Thiele Katja Böhme Chapter 6 Marianne Birthler Chapter 7	Leading Up to the Berlin Wall 186 Berlin before the Wall. The Occupied City from 1945 to 1961 192 Building the Wall 198 Division Becomes Permanent 206 Building the Berlin Wall and Life in Divided Berlin 218 Dictatorship of Borders 224 Dictatorship of Borders 239 Leading Up to the Fall of the Berlin Wall 242 The Last Years of the Wall 263 “You want to stay, we want to go” – The Emigration Movement and the Political Opposition in the GDR 278 The Peaceful Revolution and Fall of the Wall 282 The Year 1989 – Citizens’ Movement and Revolution 288 The Path to Unity 292
	Hermann Wentker Axel Klausmeier Klaus-Dietmar Henke	The Fall of the Wall and German Unity 299 “In order to grasp something, there must be something to grasp.” Or: The Remnants of the Berlin Wall as Objects of Monument Preservation 304 The Dimensions of the Berlin Wall 310
Appendix		Marienfelde Refugee Center Museum 314 Exhibition Imprint 316 Contributors 318