

Table of Contents

Foreword	11
I. The Concept of the Message in Music	13
II. Public and Private Messages in Music	19
III. The Fear of Depth	33
1. Esprit contra Profundity: Mediterranean vs. Germanic Music	33
2. Music as Expression of the “Complete Human Being”?	37
3. Absurd Music and Music as Message	39
IV. “Relational Magic” in the Music of Wagner’s Ring of the Nibelung	43
1. On the Function of the Leitmotif	43
2. The Categories Presentiment, Realization and Remembrance	46
4. “The Necessity of Doom”	50
V. Wagner’s Idea of a Religion of Art	61
1. By Way of Introduction	61
2. Art and Religion in Wagner’s Zurich Papers	63
3. On Wagner’s Doctrine of Regeneration	65
4. Christianity, Brahmanism and the Critique of Religions	66
5. The Affinity of Art with Religion	69
6. The Philosophic and Ethical Bases of the Religion of Art	71

7.	Parsifal : The Realization of the Idea	75
8.	Art as Substitute for Religion? Wagner as a Religious Founder?	78
9.	Hitler and Wagner	79
10.	The Performance Ban on Parsifal since 1939	81
11.	Conclusion.....	82
 VI.	 The Symphony of a Thousand as a Message to Humanity.....	 83
1.	Mahler's "Mass" and "Gift to the Nation".....	83
2.	Genesis	85
3.	Love as Productive Power: On the Intellectual Conception of the Eighth Symphony.....	87
4.	On the Translation into Music.....	90
 VII.	 Basics of Program Music	 99
1.	Introduction.....	99
2.	"Characteristic" Music and "Painting Symphonies" (symphonies à programmes).....	101
3.	Tone Painting and "Narration of Inner Processes"	107
4.	New Formal Concepts and Supposed Formlessness.....	112
5.	Mere Title Headings vs. Detailed Programs	117
 VIII.	 The Discomfort with Program Music	 123
 IX.	 "Tone Poets" and "Specific Musicians": 19 th -Century Composer Types	 131
1.	Art-Theoretical Presuppositions.....	131
2.	Composers and Fractions.....	137

3.	Schumann, Liszt and Wagner as All-Round Educated Musicians.....	142
X.	Music and Poetry: The Views of Schumann, Wagner and Liszt.....	147
1.	Schumann's Ideal of a "Poetic Music"	148
2.	Wagner's Ideal of a Union of the "Purely Human Art Forms" in the Drama	153
3.	Liszt's Ideal of Program Music.....	156
XI.	Schumann's Musical Poetics	165
XII.	Autobiographic Elements in Schumann's Music.....	177
XIII.	Berlioz' Conception of the "Instrumental Drama"	189
XIV.	Liszt's Conception of the "Musical Epopee"	199
XV.	Liszt's Faust Symphony: A Semantic Analysis	205
1.	Aspects of the Investigation	205
2.	Liszt's Observations about Goethe's Faust	210
3.	Themes and Structure of the "Faust" Movement.....	215
4.	Harmonic Symbolism: The Augmented Triad as Emblem of Faust.....	227
5.	The Semantics of the "Faust" and "Gretchen" Movements	232
6.	Tectonics and Character of the "Gretchen" Movement.....	242
7.	The Thematic Stock of the "Mephisto" Movement and Liszt's Technique of Distortion	246

8. The Concert Piece Malédiction as a Source of the “Mephisto” Movement.....	252
9. The Curse as Key Idea of the “Mephisto” Movement.....	257
10. Liszt’s Setting of the Chorus mysticus	259
XVI. Richard Strauss and Program Music.....	263
XVII. Hidden Program Music.....	271
1. Preliminary Remarks	271
2. A Survey of Works with Concealed Programs	272
3. Why the Programs were kept secret	279
4. Approaches to Semantic Decoding.....	282
XVIII. On the History of Mahler Reception.....	291
1. On Mahler’s Topicality and Popularity.....	291
2. The Spiritual Dimension of Mahler’s Music.....	293
3. Mahler and the Schönberg School.....	295
4. On Adorno’s Mahler Interpretation	300
5. Mahler and the Avant-Garde.....	303
XIX. Music Must Become Language: On Hans Werner Henze	305
XX. The Co-Presence of all Eras: Messages through the Ages.....	313
Afterword.....	319
Abbreviations.....	321

Selected Bibliography323

1. Letters and Writings by Composers323

2. Works of Literature and Philosophy325

3. On the Subject of Music as Message326

Index333