

Table of Contents

INTRODUCTION: RENAISSANCE COMMENTARIES ON VALERIUS MAXIMUS	1
1. Valerius Maximus in the Renaissance	1
2. Corpus	5
3. Approach, research questions and structural outline	6
4. Notes to the reader	8
CHAPTER 1: DIONIGI DA BORGO SAN SEPOLCRO (1327-1342 / 1475)	11
1. Introduction	11
2. Life and works of Dionigi da Borgo San Sepolcro	12
3. Valerius Maximus in early fourteenth-century Avignon and Naples	14
3.1 Petrarch	14
3.2 Boccaccio	17
4. Dionigi's commentary on Valerius Maximus	18
4.1 Genesis	18
4.2 Dedicatory letter	20
4.3 Between tradition and innovation	22
4.4 Commentary method, intended readership, nature, content and purpose	27
4.5 Sources	33
4.6 Manuscript tradition, printing history and print presentation	36
4.7 Reception and influence on later commentaries and translations	39
5. Conclusion	42
6. Inventory of manuscripts containing Dionigi's commentary	44
CHAPTER 2: OMNIBONUS LEONICENUS (1482)	47
1. Introduction	47
2. Life and works of Omnibonus Leonicensus	48
3. Valerius Maximus in Renaissance education	49
4. Genesis and authorship of Omnibonus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	51
4.1 Omnibonus or Pallacinus?	52
4.2 From recollectae to printed commentary	58
5. Form and content of Omnibonus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	62
5.1 Layout	62
5.2 Nature	63
5.3 Content	65
5.4 Purpose	68
6. Comparison with Guarinus Veronensis' commentary on Valerius Maximus	70

7. Comparison with Omnibonus' commentaries on other classical authors	76
8. Conclusion	79
CHAPTER 3: OLIVERIUS ARZIGNANENSIS (1487)	83
1. Introduction	83
2. Life and works of Oliverius Arzignanensis	84
3. Genesis of Oliverius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	84
4. Print presentation and paratexts of Oliverius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	87
4.1 Compendiosa vita Valerii Maximi	89
4.2 Dedicatory letter by Oliverius Arzignanensis	90
4.3 Reply by Petrus de Brutis	91
5. Nature and content of Oliverius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	93
5.1 Comparison with Omnibonus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	97
5.2 Intended readership	101
5.3 Sources	104
6. Reception of Oliverius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	107
7. Conclusion	108
CHAPTER 4: THEOPHILUS CHALCONDYLES [1506]	111
1. Introduction	111
2. Life and works of Theophilus Chalcondyles	111
3. Printing history, form and content of Theophilus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	113
3.1 Form and content	118
3.2 A case study (1.8.ext.7)	123
3.3 Sources	125
4. Genesis and authorship of Theophilus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	128
4.1 Theophilus or Asinus Arcadicus?	128
4.2 Janus Parrhasius and Alexander Minutianus	132
4.3 Theophilus' commentary as a vehicle for propaganda and polemic	135
4.4 Theophilus Chalcondyles or Janus Parrhasius?	137
5. Conclusion	142
CHAPTER 5: JODOCUS BADIUS ASCENSIVS (1510)	143
1. Introduction	143
2. Life and works of Jodocus Badius Ascensius	144
3. Genesis, printing history and print presentation of Badius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	145
4. Nature and content of Badius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	151
4.1 Layout	151
4.2 Discourse	152

4.3 Content	153
4.4 Sources	157
5. Comparison with Oliverius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	158
5.1 Badius and Oliverius: a complementary project	158
5.2 Badius' commentary on the twenty-four additional exempla	159
6. Comparison with Badius' commentaries on other classical authors	160
6.1 Livy (1511, 1513)	162
6.2 Sallust (1504)	163
6.3 Lucan (1506)	164
7. Badius' dedicatory letter to Germain de Ganay	166
7.1 Intended audience	166
7.2 Badius' views on Valerius Maximus	168
8. Conclusion	171
CHAPTER 6: HENRICUS GLAREANUS (1553)	173
1. Introduction	173
2. Life and works of Henricus Glareanus	174
3. Genesis and printing history of Glareanus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	176
4. Nature and content of Glareanus' commentary on Valerius Maximus	180
4.1 Layout	180
4.2 Dedicatory letter and introduction	180
4.3 Discourse	183
4.4 Intended readership	184
4.5 Content	185
4.5.1 Chronology, prosopography and genealogy	185
4.5.2 Textual criticism	188
4.6 Sources	190
4.7 Glareanus as a Christian humanist	194
5. Comparison with Glareanus' commentaries on other classical authors	196
5.1 Dionysius of Halicarnassus (1532)	198
5.2 Lucan (1550)	200
5.3 Eutropius (1559)	201
6. Conclusion	204
CHAPTER 7: AETAS PIGHIANA (1567-1600)	207
1. Introduction	207
2. Life and works of Stephanus Pighius	208
3. Genesis and printing history of Pighius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	210
4. Nature and content of Pighius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	216
4.1 Dedicatory letter and other paratexts of the 1567 edition	216
4.1.1 Pighius' views on history and historiography	217
4.1.2 Pighius' views on Valerius Maximus	220
4.1.3 Editorial principles	221

4.2 Letter to the reader and other paratexts of the 1574 edition	224
4.3 Form and content of Pighius' commentary	226
4.4 Textual criticism	228
4.5 Sources	236
5. Reception of Pighius' commentary on Valerius Maximus	237
6. Supplement by Claudius Mitalerius (1576)	242
6.1 Printing history and print presentation	242
6.2 Life and works	243
6.3 Genesis	244
6.4 Paratexts	244
6.5 Nature and content	245
6.6 Reception	247
7. Supplement by Justus Lipsius (1585)	247
7.1 Life and works	247
7.2 Lipsius and Valerius Maximus	248
7.3 Genesis	249
7.4 Nature and content	255
7.5 Textual criticism	257
7.6 Reception	262
8. Conclusion	265
CONCLUSION: EXEMPLARY READING / READING EXEMPLA	267
1. Printed Renaissance commentaries on Valerius Maximus (1470-1600): summary	267
2. Towards a new image of Valerius Maximus?	271
3. Outcome of Valerius' commentary tradition	275
APPENDIX: LIST OF FULL LATIN EDITIONS PUBLISHED BETWEEN 1470 AND 1600	279
WORKS CITED	289
INDEX NOMINUM	307