

Contents

1	Overview — 1
1.1	What this Book is About — 1
1.2	The Syntax and Semantics of Topic Drop — 1
1.2.1	The Syntax of Topic Drop — 2
1.2.2	The Interpretation of Topic Dropped Elements — 6
1.3	Null Subjects in German — 9
2	Topic Drop in German: (The Lack of) Identity between Antecedent and Gap — 15
2.1	Introduction — 15
2.1.1	Topic Drop is Restricted to the Prefield — 16
2.1.2	General Conditions on Antecedents of Topic Dropped Elements — 19
2.2	Verbatim and Non-verbatim Topic Drop: Two Kinds of Topic Drop in German — 25
2.2.1	A First Approach to Verbatim Topic Drop (VTD) and Non-verbatim Topic Drop (NVTD) — 25
2.2.2	VTD is not 'Stripping in Disguise' — 33
2.3	An Empirical Basis for the VTD/NVTD Distinction — 37
2.4	Structural Well-Formedness Conditions on VTD and NVTD — 52
2.4.1	Topic Drop and the C- and S-selectional Properties of Predicates — 53
2.4.2	On the Correlation between Case, Theta Roles and Verbal Semantics — 56
2.4.3	A Comparison of Synonymous Verbs with Different Case Assignment Properties — 62
2.5	Topic Drop and the Event Structure of Structural and Oblique Case Assigning Verbs — 79
2.5.1	Empirical Findings, Hypotheses and Theoretical Assumptions — 79
2.5.2	Investigation of Events Denoted by Nom/Dat Verbs (in Contrast to Events Denoted by Nom/Acc Verbs) — 83
2.5.3	Investigation of Events Denoted by Nom/Gen Verbs and Nom/Acc-REFL/Gen Verbs — 88
2.5.4	Investigation of (Events Denoted by) Three-Place Verbs — 94
2.6	Topic Drop and the Representation of +/-Complex Events — 100

2.6.1	The Relation between C-selection and S-selection in the Context of +/-Oblique Case Assignment — 100
2.6.2	The Syntax of Oblique Case Assignment – Some Introductory Notes — 102
2.6.3	+/-Oblique Case Assignment (and Topic Drop) — 105
2.6.4	The Syntactic Representation of +/-Oblique Case Assignment — 112
2.7	Appendix: Topic Drop of Expletive Elements — 120
3	Topic Drop in German: The Interpretation of the Gap — 122
3.1	Introduction: (Im-)possible Interpretations of VTD and NVTG Gaps — 122
3.2	Two Different Kinds of Binding in Topic Drop Dialogues — 128
3.2.1	The Target Binder is a Referential Expression — 129
3.2.2	The Target Binder is a Non-referential Expression — 138
3.2.3	Interim Summary: Referential vs. Non-referential Binding — 141
3.2.4	The Interpretation of the Reflexive Pronoun sich — 142
3.2.5	The Interpretation of 1 st and 2 nd Person (Indexical) Pronouns — 145
3.3	Survey on Bound Readings of the Gap: A (Better) Empirical Basis — 153
3.4	The Representation of the Gap — 165
3.4.1	Binding in Topic Drop Dialogues: Empirical Findings — 165
3.4.2	Binding in Topic Drop Dialogues: Some Theoretical Considerations — 170
3.4.3	The Identification and Licensing of pro — 175
4	Null Subjects at the Syntax-Pragmatics Interface — 185
4.1	Introduction: (Antecedent-Independent) Null Subject Omission in German — 185
4.2	Well-Formedness Conditions on Antecedent-Independent Null Subjects — 195
4.2.1	Empirical Investigations of German and Other (Non-)Null Subject Languages — 198
4.3	More on the Identification/Licensing of Null Subjects (in German) — 218
4.3.1	Independent Evidence for the Assumed Identification/Licensing Conditions on Null Subjects — 218
4.3.2	Positional Licensing of 'Out of the Blue Drop' (OBD) and the Empty Category Associated with OBD — 222

4.3.3	OBD in Embedded V2 Clauses —	223
4.3.4	Non-Prefield Null Subjects in German —	228
4.3.5	German – a Partial Null Subject Language (?) —	234

References —	237
--------------	-----

Index —	245
---------	-----