

Contents

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1 The Problem of Principles of Individuation — 2
- 1.2 Singleness. A Brief Survey of Notions Concerning Individuality — 8
- 1.3 The Importance of the Scholastic Problem of Individuation — 13
- 1.4 A Brief Historical Survey of the Scholastic Debate on Individuation — 14
- 1.5 The Method of the Study — 16

2 Entitas. Nominalism and Self-Individuation — 23

- 2.1 Main Nominalistic Theses — 23
- 2.2 Standard Arguments for the Strong Self-Individuation Thesis — 26
- 2.3 Ens et Unum Convertuntur — 27
- 2.4 The Immediacy of Individuality — 28
 - 2.4.1 The Immediacy of Attributes in General — 28
 - 2.4.2 The Immediacy of Distinction — 30
 - 2.4.3 The Immediacy of Individuality — 33
- 2.5 The Individuality Thesis and Simple Entities in Nominalism — 34
- 2.6 General Features of the Nominalistic Standpoint — 37

3 Haecceitas. The Scotistic Rejection of the Strong Self-Individuation Thesis — 39

- 3.1 Main Theses of the Scotistic Standpoint — 39
- 3.2 Standard Arguments for the Scotistic Theses — 40
- 3.3 A Weak Sense of Individuality — 42
- 3.4 Avicenna on Instantiable Natures — 46
 - 3.4.1 Some Details of Instance Ascription — 49
 - 3.4.2 Natures and Instances, Parts and Wholes — 52
 - 3.4.3 The Scotistic Interpretation of Avicenna — 56
- 3.5 Can Things be Differentiated by What They Have in Common? — 58
- 3.6 The Scotistic Way of Rejecting Self-Individuation — 60
- 3.7 What Individuality is Not? — 62
- 3.8 Scotism and Nominalism — 65

4	Forms and Self-Individuation — 67
4.1	Forms as Principles of Individuation: the Main Thesis and Standard Arguments — 67
4.2	Effects of Formal Causes — 69
4.3	Formal Causes, Kinds, and Singleness — 70
4.4	Formal Causes and Self-Individuation — 72
5	Subjects as Principles of the Individuation of Their Accidents — 73
5.1	Aquinas's Main Thesis Concerning the Individuation of Accidents — 73
5.2	Being in a Subject and Singleness — 76
5.2.1	Various Senses of 'Being in a Subject' — 76
5.2.2	Being in a Subject, Parts, and Wholes — 78
5.2.3	Being in a Subject and Individuality — 80
5.2.4	The Two Senses of the Subject-Individuation Thesis — 81
5.3	The Individuation of Human Virtues — 82
5.4	Subjects of Accidents and the Thomistic Way of Rejecting Self-Individuation — 86
5.5	The Subject-Individuation Thesis and the Formal Individuation Thesis — 88
6	Matter: Noninstantiability and Self-Individuation — 93
6.1	Matter and Individuality: Aquinas's Main Thesis — 93
6.2	Subjects of Substantial Forms: Matter — 96
6.3	Prime Subjects and Noninstantiability — 98
6.3.1	Matter as a Prime Subject — 98
6.3.2	An Old Objection and Various Responses to It — 101
6.4	Matter and Noninstantiability of Forms — 105
7	Quantity and Self-Individuation — 109
7.1	Quantity and the Individuality of Substances: Aquinas's Main Thesis — 109
7.2	Material Difference, Matter, and Extension — 112
7.3	Division into Pieces, Position, and Individuality — 115
7.4	Aquinas on the Self-Individuation of Quantity — 117
7.5	Matter and Quantity. What is Materia Signata ? — 121
7.6	The Two Aspects of Individuality — 124
7.7	Quantity and the Individuation of Parts of Substances — 126

- 7.8 The Individuality of Human Souls. Commensuratio animae ad hoc corpus — 128

8 Actual Existence and Individuality — 131

- 8.1 The Existence-Individuation Thesis and Some Standard Arguments — 131
- 8.2 Actual Existence and Individuality — 133
- 8.3 Ultimate Actuality, Ultimate Distinction, and Noninstantiability Again — 136
- 8.4 Actual Existence, Accidental Unity, and Individuality — 139
 - 8.4.1 Per se Unity, Accidental Unity, and Individuality — 140
 - 8.4.2 Per se Unity, Accidental Unity, and Existence — 142
- 8.5 Is Actual Existence a Principle of Individuation? — 143

9 Concluding Remarks: The Thomistic Theory of Individuation — 147

- 9.1 Main Features of the Thomistic Theory of Individuation — 147
- 9.2 The Thomistic Theory of Individuation, Scotism, and Nominalism — 149
- 9.3 The Thomistic Theory of Individuation from a Historical Point of View — 149
- 9.4 The Problem of Individuation: a General Framework — 150

Bibliography — 155

Index — 161