

Contents

|                                                                                                               |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Foreword                                                                                               | VII |
| Brenner, H.D. (Valparaiso)                                                                                    |            |
| Preface                                                                                                | IX  |
| Medalia, A. (New York, N.Y.); Roder, V. (Bern)                                                                |            |
|                                                                                                           |            |
| 1 Definition and Measurement of Neurocognition and Social Cognition                                    | 1   |
| Kern, R.S.; Horan, W.P. (Los Angeles, Calif.)                                                                 |            |
| 2 The Relevance of Neurocognition and Social Cognition for Outcome and Recovery in Schizophrenia       | 23  |
| Brekke, J.S.; Nakagami, E. (Los Angeles, Calif.)                                                              |            |
| 3 Treatment Approaches with a Special Focus on Neurocognition: Overview and Empirical Results          | 37  |
| Kurtz, M.M. (Middletown, Conn.); Sartory, G. (Wuppertal)                                                      |            |
| 3.1 Compensatory Cognitive Training                                                                    | 50  |
| Twamley, E.W.; Zurhellen, C.H.; Vella, L. (San Diego, Calif.)                                                 |            |
| 4 Treatment Approaches with a Special Focus on Social Cognition: Overview and Empirical Results        | 61  |
| Wölwer, W. (Düsseldorf); Combs, D.R. (Tyler, Tex.); Frommann, N. (Düsseldorf); Penn, D.L. (Chapel Hill, N.C.) |            |
| 4.1 Training of Emotional Intelligence in Schizophrenia                                                | 79  |
| Vauth, R. (Basel)                                                                                             |            |
| 5 Combined Treatment Approaches: Overview and Empirical Results                                        | 85  |
| Roder, V.; Hulka, L. (Bern); Medalia, A. (New York, N.Y.)                                                     |            |
| 5.1 An Overview of the Neuropsychological and Educational Approach to Remediation                      | 104 |
| Medalia, A.; Mambirino, E. (New York, N.Y.)                                                                   |            |

|                                                                                   |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 5.2 Integrated Psychological Therapy and Integrated Neurocognitive Therapy | 118 |
| Müller, D.R.; Roder, V. (Bern)                                                    |            |
| 6 Pharmacological Interventions                                            | 145 |
| Hofer, A.; Fleischhacker, W.W. (Innsbruck)                                        |            |
| 7 Motivational Enhancements in Schizophrenia                               | 158 |
| Medalia, A.; Choi, J. (New York, N.Y.)                                            |            |
| Author Index                                                               | 173 |
| Subject Index                                                              | 175 |