

Table of contents

Acknowledgements — V

Abbreviations — XI

List of tables, figures and grammatical definitions — XII

1 Introduction — 1

2 Theoretical, empirical and methodological foundations — 3

2.1 Theory: signifié/signifiant — 6

2.1.1 Arbitrariness and conventions — 7

2.1.2 Saussure and syntax: linearity, limitations of arbitrariness — 10

2.1.3 Neo-Saussurean syntax — 15

2.1.4 Summary and implications — 19

2.2 The object of study: synchrony/diachrony and
langue/parole — 22

2.2.1 Synchrony/diachrony — 22

2.2.2 Delimiting the object of study in time and space — 23

2.2.3 Langage, langue, parole — 24

2.2.4 Further delimiting the object of study – the Norwegian Nominal
System — 26

2.3 Methodology — 28

2.3.1 Syntagmatic vs. paradigmatic relations, value and signification — 28

2.3.2 The contrastive view — 33

2.3.3 The concrete data — 35

2.4 Neo-Saussurean grammar vs. other current theories — 36

2.4.1 Neo-Saussurean grammar and (European) structuralism — 36

2.4.2 Neo-Saussurean vs. generative grammar — 38

2.4.3 Neo-Saussurean vs. cognitive linguistics and construction
grammar(s) — 41

2.4.4 Summary — 43

2.5 Closing the chapter — 44

3 Norwegian nouns and adjectives — 45

3.1 Norwegian nouns — 46

3.2 The Norwegian definite forms — 51

|         |                                                                                                     |
|---------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3.2.1   | Distribution and interpretation of the definite forms – definiteness as identifiability — 52 |
| 3.2.2   | Implicit or “missing” possessives — 57                                                       |
| 3.3     | The Norwegian Indefinite Plural — 60                                                         |
| 3.3.1   | Sentential distribution and interpretations of the Indefinite Plural — 60                    |
| 3.3.2   | Phrasal distribution — 63                                                                    |
| 3.3.3   | Reference to kinds from a Norwegian perspective — 66                                         |
| 3.3.3.1 | Norwegian Indefinite Plurals as a diagnostic for kind reference — 67                         |
| 3.3.3.2 | Number and the English bare plural, Bouchard (2002) — 72                                     |
| 3.3.3.3 | (Sentential) Interpretations of the Norwegian Indefinite Plural — 76                         |
| 3.3.3.4 | Reference to kinds in Norwegian — 77                                                         |
| 3.3.3.5 | Summary - kinds — 81                                                                         |
| 3.3.4   | Non-definite plurals in Danish and Swedish — 81                                              |
| 3.3.5   | Summary: Norwegian Indefinite Plurals — 84                                                   |
| 3.4     | The Norwegian Bare Noun — 84                                                                 |
| 3.4.1   | Norwegian and French vs English – nominal predication (and lone determiners) — 86            |
| 3.4.2   | Norwegian vs. English – uniqueness, intentionality, massiveness — 91                         |
| 3.4.3   | Idiosyncratically Norwegian – type readings — 94                                             |
| 3.4.3.1 | Norwegian Bare Nouns, number and definiteness — 96                                           |
| 3.4.3.2 | Norwegian Bare Nouns are numberable — 100                                                    |
| 3.4.3.3 | Norwegian nouns and agreement — 103                                                          |
| 3.4.3.4 | General number and subject-tense agreement — 107                                             |
| 3.5     | Value and interpretations of Norwegian nouns — 109                                           |
| 3.6     | Some remarks and speculations on variation — 112                                             |
| 3.7     | A note on grammar and ontology — 115                                                         |
| 3.8     | Closing Norwegian nouns — 116                                                                |
| 3.9     | Norwegian adjectives — 117                                                                   |
| 3.9.1   | Positive adjectives – attributive use — 121                                                  |
| 3.9.2   | Positive adjectives – pronominal use — 124                                                   |
| 3.9.2.1 | Pronominal use of the singular indefinite adjectives — 128                                   |
| 3.9.2.2 | Pronominal use of -e Adjectives — 131                                                        |
| 3.9.2.3 | Closing — 135                                                                                |
| 3.9.3   | Predicative use: an apparent problem – the weak/strong distinction — 136                     |

|          |                                                                                                                |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3.9.4    | Over- and under-differentiated paradigms – featural composition revisited — 144                         |
| 3.9.5    | Comparatives and superlatives — 148                                                                     |
| 3.9.6    | Closing Norwegian Adjectives — 158                                                                      |
| 3.10     | A welcome consequence – economic featural distribution in attributive adjective-noun combinations — 159 |
| 4 | Nominal function words — 161                                                                            |
| 4.1      | On function words and word classes — 163                                                                |
| 4.2      | Personal pronouns — 165                                                                                 |
| 4.3      | Quantifiers — 171                                                                                       |
| 4.3.1    | The en -series — 171                                                                             |
| 4.3.1.1  | The semantics of the en -series — 171                                                            |
| 4.3.1.2  | En, ei, et and (de)accentuation — 178                                                            |
| 4.3.1.3  | Special interpretation of en – with a note on man — 181                                   |
| 4.3.1.4  | Summing up — 182                                                                                        |
| 4.3.2    | Noen and noe — 183                                                                        |
| 4.3.2.1  | The core meaning of noe(n) — 184                                                                 |
| 4.3.2.2  | Additional features of noe(n) — 188                                                              |
| 4.3.2.3  | Special interpretations of noe(n) — 196                                                          |
| 4.3.2.4  | Summary — 198                                                                                           |
| 4.3.3    | Norwegian All quantifiers — 199                                                                         |
| 4.3.3.1  | All, alt, alle — 199                                                                             |
| 4.3.3.2  | Other all quantifiers — 206                                                                             |
| 4.4      | The demonstratives den, det, de — 208                                                            |
| 4.4.1    | Core semantics of det, den, de — 210                                                             |
| 4.4.2    | Distribution and additional semantics of den, det, de — 212                                      |
| 4.4.3    | Other interpretations — 214                                                                             |
| 4.4.4    | Special uses of det — 215                                                                        |
| 4.4.5    | Summary demonstratives — 217                                                                            |
| 4.5      | Conclusion — 218                                                                                        |
| 5 | Syntax – combinatorial and syntactically complex signs — 219                                            |
| 5.1      | The Sign Theory of Syntax: combinatorial signs — 220                                                    |
| 5.1.1    | Syntax as combinatorial signs — 220                                                                     |
| 5.1.2    | The meaning of combinatorial signs — 224                                                                |
| 5.1.3    | The form of combinatorial signs — 226                                                                   |
| 5.2      | Juxtaposition and the distribution of possessives and attributive adjectives — 230                      |

|         |                                                                                      |     |
|---------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 5.2.1   | Ordering of head and dependents —                                                    | 230 |
| 5.2.2   | Pronominal possession —                                                              | 231 |
| 5.2.3   | Distribution of attributive adjectives —                                             | 238 |
| 5.2.4   | Agreement and ungrammaticality: convention vs. conceptual incompatibility —          | 242 |
| 5.2.5   | Dependent marking —                                                                  | 246 |
| 5.3     | Superimposition and adjectival modification —                                        | 248 |
| 5.3.1   | Definite adjectival combinations and deaccentuate —                                  | 249 |
| 5.3.1.1 | The role of the demonstrative in the Default Definite Adjectival Construction —      | 252 |
| 5.3.1.2 | Norwegian vs. Danish —                                                               | 253 |
| 5.3.1.3 | Definite vs. deixis —                                                                | 254 |
| 5.3.1.4 | The sign deaccentuation/-CONTRAST —                                                  | 257 |
| 5.3.1.5 | Restrictive vs. descriptive interpretations of the Default Adjectival Construction — | 262 |
| 5.3.1.6 | Adjectival modification of non-definite NPs —                                        | 265 |
| 5.3.1.7 | Closing remarks —                                                                    | 268 |
| 5.3.2   | Intensifying Noun Phrases —                                                          | 269 |
| 5.3.2.1 | A description of Intensifying Noun Phrases —                                         | 269 |
| 5.3.2.2 | The formal representation of Intensifying Noun Phrases —                             | 273 |
| 5.3.2.3 | Closing remarks: Prosody and iconicity —                                             | 275 |
| 5.3.3   | Omissions of the definite suffixes —                                                 | 276 |
| 5.3.3.1 | Omission of definite suffixes in adjectival constructions —                          | 277 |
| 5.3.3.2 | Demonstratives, relative clauses and (in)definiteness —                              | 281 |
| 5.3.3.3 | Definite vs. non-definite forms after all-quantifiers —                              | 286 |
| 5.3.3.4 | Summary —                                                                            | 288 |
| 5.3.4   | Absence of the demonstrative —                                                       | 289 |
| 5.3.4.1 | Restrictive definite adjectival constructions —                                      | 289 |
| 5.3.4.2 | Constructions that require absence of the demonstrative —                            | 291 |
| 5.3.4.3 | Emotive Adjectival Construction —                                                    | 294 |
| 5.3.4.4 | Vocatives and the Emotive Construction —                                             | 298 |
| 5.4     | Summary superimposition and adjectival modification —                                | 300 |

6 Concluding remarks — 303

Bibliography — 311

Subject Index — 321