

Contents

Andreas Kötzing / Caroline Moine
Introduction	7
I. Festivals as Crossroads Between West, East, and South?	13
Tobias Ebbrecht-Hartmann
Socialist Competition or Window to the World? East German Student
Films at International Festivals in the Context of the Cold War	15
Andreas Kötzing
Cultural and Film Policy in the Cold War: The Film Festivals of
Oberhausen and Leipzig and German-German Relations	31
Dunja Jelenković
The Film Festival as an Arena for Political Debate:
The Yugoslav Black Wave in Belgrade and Oberhausen	47
Regina Câmara
From Karlovy Vary to Cannes:
Brazilian Cinema Novo at European Film Festivals in the 1960s	63
II. New Protagonists in Film Festival Politics	77
Anne Bruch
“Just think of the possibilities of dissemination...”:
The Film Festival Policy of the European Institutions in the 1950s and 1960s	79
Yulia Yurtaeva
“Jetzt ‘festivalt’ auch die Television”:
Television Festivals in the 1960s	91

III. Festivals as a Stage for National and Transnational Politics.	107
Maria A. Stassinopoulou
Scenes from A Marriage: The Thessaloniki Film Festival Between Mainstream and Art Cinema from its Beginnings to the 1970s	109
Stefano Pisu
Transnational Mobilization and Domestic Political Exploitation: The 1977 Venice Biennale of Dissent.....	123
John Wäfler
The Surveillance of Film Festivals in Switzerland: The Case of Locarno International Film Festival	141
Dragan Batančev
The Belgrade FEST, or What Happened When Peckinpah Met Wajda	153
Appendix.....	167
Index of Authors	169