

Contents

List of figures [page vii]

Notes on contributors [ix]

Acknowledgements [xii]

List of abbreviations [xiii]

Introduction: Pleasure in history [1]

NICHOLAS MATHEW AND BENJAMIN WALTON

PART I THE AGE OF BEETHOVEN AND ROSSINI? [13]

- 1 Dahlhaus's Beethoven-Rossini Stildualismus: lingering legacies of the text-event dichotomy [15]

JAMES HEPOKOSKI

- 2 Beethoven, Rossini – and others [49]

JAMES WEBSTER

- 3 Heilige Trias, Stildualismus, Beethoven: on the limits of nineteenth-century Germanic music historiography [66]

GUNDULA KREUZER

- 4 Rossini and Beethoven in the reception of Schubert [96]

SUZANNAH CLARK

PART II SENSES OF PLACE [121]

- 5 Two styles in 1830s London: "The form and order of a perspicuous unity" [123]

ROGER PARKER

- 6 Looking north: Carlo Soliva and the two styles south of the Alps [139]

MARTIN DEASY

- 7 “More German than Beethoven”: Rossini’s Zelmira and Italian style [159]
BENJAMIN WALTON

- 8 On being there in 1824 [178]
NICHOLAS MATHEW

PART III REHEARINGS [195]

- 9 Making overtures [197]
SCOTT BURNHAM

- 10 Beethoven dances: Prometheus and his creatures in Vienna and Milan [210]
MARY ANN SMART

- 11 Rossinian repetitions [236]
EMANUELE SENICI

PART IV CROSSING MUSICAL CULTURES [263]

- 12 Very much of this world: Beethoven, Rossini, and the historiography of modernity [265]
JULIAN JOHNSON

- 13 Schopenhauer and Rossinian universality: on the Italianate in Schopenhauer’s metaphysics of music [283]
Yael BRAUNSCHWEIG

- 14 Elements of disorder: appealing Beethoven vs. Rossini [305]
JOHN DEATHRIDGE

- 15 Role reversal: Rossini and Beethoven in early biopics [333]
RICHARD WILL

List of works cited [355]

Index [381]