

Table of contents

List of Tables	IX
List of Figures	XI
List of Abbreviations	XIII
Danksagung	XV
Abstract	XVII
1 INTRODUCTION	1
2 THEORETICAL BACKGROUND	11
SELF-INTEREST AS A MEANS OF PREVENTING CORRUPTION
2.1 Corruption as a Societal Challenge in the 21 st Century	11
2.1.1 Delimiting Corruption	11
2.1.2 Defining Corruption	13
2.1.3 Categorizing Corruption	16
2.1.4 Conceptualizing Corruption	19
2.1.5 Assessing Corruption	29
2.2 Coordinated Governance Initiatives as a New Approach for Curbing Corruption	36
2.2.1 International Anti-Corruption Efforts in Historical Perspective . . .	36
2.2.2 Overcoming the Governance Gap	46
2.2.3 Governance Structure and Overview of Coordinated Governance Initiatives	50

2.2.4 Potential Success Factors of Coordinated Governance Initiatives . .	64
2.2.5 Empirical Basis for the Assessment of Anti-Corruption Initiatives	70
2.3 Summary	74
3 METHODOLOGICAL APPROACH	79
3.1 Problem Statement and Research Aims	79
3.2 Research Paradigm and Strategy.	81
3.3 Research Design: Multiple-Case Study Design	84
3.4 Purposive Sampling: Case Selection.	85
3.5 Data Collection: Interviews and Documents.	89
3.6 Data Analysis: Template Analysis.	95
3.7 Limitations of the Multiple-Case Study	97
4 MULTIPLE-CASE STUDY ANALYSIS.	99
4.1 EMB Case	100
4.1.1 Profile, Origin, and Sector Characteristics.	100
4.1.2 Organizational Set-up and Operational Procedures.	104
4.1.3 Success Factors – General View	107
4.1.4 Embeddedness in an Established Institutional Framework	110
4.1.5 Highly Committed Participants	111
4.1.6 Lean Governance Structure	112
4.1.7 Repeated External Audits.	114
4.1.8 Competitive Advantages.	115
4.2 EITI Case	117
4.2.1 Profile, Origin, and Sector Characteristics.	117
4.2.2 Organizational Set-up and Operational Procedures.	122
4.2.3 Success Factors – General View	128
4.2.4 Supportive Institutional Framework.	130
4.2.5 Representation of Diverse Interests	132
4.2.6 Narrow Scope of Objectives.	135
4.2.7 Flexible Governance Structure.	135
4.2.8 Ability to Enforce Rules.	137
4.2.9 Country-Ownership	138
4.3 MACN Case	139
4.3.1 Profile, Origin, and Sector Characteristics.	139
4.3.2 Organizational Set-up and Operational Procedures.	142
4.3.3 Success Factors – General View	146
4.3.4 Awareness-Raising within the Maritime Sector	148
4.3.5 Knowledge and Experience Sharing Among Participants.	148
4.3.6 Self-Assessment and Reporting Requirements	150
4.3.7 Creation of Tangible Benefits through Local Collective Actions. . .	151
4.3.8 Visibility towards and Recognition by External Stakeholders. . . .	152

5	CROSS-CASE ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION	155
5.1	Initiatives' Company Composition	156
5.2	Situations of Crisis and External Threats as Initiating Factors.....	160
5.3	Existence of a Supportive Institutional Framework	163
5.4	Continuing Commitment of Participants	165
5.5	Complexity-Dependent Governance Structures and Procedures	170
5.6	Enforcement Mechanisms for Reputation Protection	174
6	SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS	177
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	187
	APPENDICES	209
	Appendix 1: Interview Guide.....	209
	Appendix 2: List of Documents Analyzed – EMB Case.....	211
	Appendix 3: List of Documents Analyzed – EITI Case	214
	Appendix 4: List of Documents Analyzed – MACN Case	219