

Contents

Acknowledgements	VII
List of Abbreviations	VIII
1 Introduction	1
2 Anticausatives	4
2.1 Preliminary remarks	4
2.1.1 Valence	4
2.1.2 Valence change	7
2.1.3 Valence alternations	7
2.2 Definition(s) of the notion anticausative	9
2.3 Restrictions on anticausative formation	11
2.4 Anticausative formation and anticausativization	17
2.5 Summary	23
3 The Emergence of the French reflexive anticausative	24
3.1 Introduction	24
3.2 Chronology	25
3.3 Zooming in: Anticausatives and reflexive constructions in 12th century Old French	32
3.4 The Course of the emergence	43
3.4.1 Reflexive constructions	43
3.4.2 True reflexives, reflexive psych verbs and reflexive anticausatives	46
3.4.3 The Mechanism of language change	52
3.5 Summary	65
4 The Spread of the French reflexive anticausative	66
4.1 Introduction	66
4.2 Data basis and data extraction	68
4.3 Quantitative observations	72
4.3.1 The Increase of the relative frequency of RAC from Old to Modern French	72
4.3.2 Lexical diffusion of RAC from Old to Modern French	74
4.4 Qualitative observations	76
4.4.1 Regularity	76
4.4.2 Semantic verb classes	79
4.4.2.1 General points	79
4.4.2.2 Diachronic course	81
4.4.3 Animacy of the subject	87

VI

4.4.3.1	General points	87
4.4.3.2	Diachronic course	88
4.4.4	Possibility of use in UAC	90
4.5	The Temporal course of the increase of RAC	96
4.6	Consequences for UAC	103
4.7	Summary	108
5	The Semantic relation between French reflexive and unmarked anticausatives	110
5.1	Introduction	110
5.2	Aspectual structure	111
5.2.1	Zribi-Hertz (1987)	111
5.2.2	Labelle (1992)	118
5.2.3	Bassac (1995)	121
5.2.4	Telicity, perfectivity and the resultant state	126
5.3	Causal structure	136
5.3.1	Causes in anticausatives	136
5.3.2	Markedness theory and the spontaneity of events	140
5.3.3	Proposals on French: RAC vs. UAC	144
5.4	Case studies	151
5.4.1	Method	151
5.4.2	Results	157
5.4.2.1	Quantitative development of reflexive and unmarked anticausative uses	157
5.4.2.2	Qualitative differences between reflexive and unmarked anticausatives	162
5.5	Discussion	172
5.5.1	Resultant state or telicity as the relevant feature?	172
5.5.2	The Resultant state in RAC	175
5.5.3	The Cause in French RAC	184
6	Auxiliary selection in unmarked anticausatives and the spread of the reflexive anticausative	187
7	Conclusion	194