

Table of Contents

Introduction	9
 1. Not a common way of looking.....	17
1.1 In the end	17
1.2 A closer look at the contrast	24
1.3 Three philosophical playgrounds.....	47
1.4 By way of some further orientation	54
1.5 In the beginning.....	65
 2. “Die Problematik der Philosophie ist die Problematik des Witzes”	69
2.1 The most important questions are covered up	69
2.2 The Witz of the language-game.....	80
2.3 Intermezzo: Wittgenstein – the psychologist	95
2.4 The system.....	108
2.5 Two types of prejudices.....	122
 3. Wittgenstein’s Copernican Revolution, Part I	135
3.1 By way of a prologue.....	135
3.2 Crystalline purity	139
3.3 About a That and its How	147
3.4 Another That and How	162
3.5 PI §108.....	167
3.6 PI §§130–131	179

4. Wittgenstein's Copernican Revolution, Part II	183
4.1 Parallel cases	183
4.2 Whose possibility?	188
4.3 Light and understanding.....	204
4.4 From without.....	223
4.5 Analogies.....	233
 5. What do our neighbours look like?.....	 245
5.1 Why play the game the way we do?	245
5.2 Polar opposites and contradiction	270
5.3 What a strange method!.....	287
 6. A big gap in Wittgenstein's thinking	 295
6.1 Surprise and a first grip	296
6.2 A closer look at the Step.....	306
6.3 Rules and Moore-type propositions	318
6.4 On Certainty §501	324
6.5 Another exploitation of the Step.....	334
 References	 339