

Table of contents

Acknowledgments — v

Introduction — ix

Toon Van Hal

- 1 The alleged Persian-Germanic connection: A remarkable chapter in the study of Persian from the sixteenth through the nineteenth centuries — 1

Shinji Ido

- 2 Huihuiguan zazi: A New Persian glossary compiled in Ming China — 21

Adriano V. Rossi

- 3 Glimpses of Balochi lexicography: Some iconyms for the landscape and their motivation — 53

Martin Schwartz

- 4 On some Iranian secret vocabularies, as evidenced by a fourteenth-century Persian manuscript — 69

Agnès Lenepveu-Hotz

- 5 Specialization of an ancient object marker in the New Persian of the fifteenth century — 81

Lutz Rzehak

- 6 Fillers, emphasizees, and other adjuncts in spoken Dari and Pashto — 101

Youli Ioannesyan

- 7 The historically unmotivated majhul vowel as a significant areal dialectological feature — 119

Zohreh R. Eslami, Mohammad Abdolhosseini, and Shadi Dini

- 8 Variability in Persian forms of address as represented in the works of Iranian playwrights — 135

Hooman Saeli and Corey Miller

- 9 Some linguistic indicators of sociocultural formality in Persian — 163

- Behrooz Mahmoodi-Bakhtiari
- 10 Spoken vs. written Persian: Is Persian diglossic? — 183
- Lewis Gebhardt
- 11 Accounting for *yek ta in Persian — 213
- Jila Ghomeshi
- 12 The associative plural and related constructions in Persian — 233
- Shahrazad Mahootian and Lewis Gebhardt
- 13 Revisiting the status of -eš in Persian — 263
- Arseniy Vydrin
- 14 ‘Difficult’ and ‘easy’ in Ossetic — 277
- Z. A. Yusupova
- 15 Possessive construction in Kurdish — 297
- Carina Jahani
- 16 To bring the distant near: On deixis in Iranian oral literature — 309
- Katarzyna Marszalek-Kowalewska
- 17 Extracting semantic similarity from Persian texts — 339
- List of contributors — 363
- Index — 365