

Content

Introduction: Gender Studies and the New Academic Governance	1
Heike Kahlert

I Interventions: Gender, Gender Studies and Academic Feminism

Gender in the Neo-liberal Research Economy: An Enervating and Exclusionary Entanglement?	15
Louise Morley

Gender Studies at the Time of Neo-liberal Transformation in Estonian Academia	41
Kadri Aavik and Raili Marling

Neo-liberalism and Feminism in the South African Academy	65
Desiree Lewis

II Interactions: Gender Research, Academic Feminism and Society

The Relationship between Gender Research and Society in the Norwegian Brainwash Controversy of 2010–2011	85
Pia Vuolanto

The Place for Gender Research in Contemporary Portuguese Science and Higher Education Policies within the Context of Neo-liberalism	107
Amélia Augusto, Catarina Sales Oliveira, Emília Araújo and Carla Cerqueira

V

On the Use of Innovation Arguments for Getting Gender Research into STEM	129
Sigrid Schmitz

Academic Feminism and Exclusion in Brazil: Bringing Back Some of the Missing Voices	153
Cristiano Rodrigues and Mariana Prandini Assis

III Institutionalisation: Gender Studies' Epistemic and Organisational Statuses in the Academy

The Institutionalisation of Gender Studies and the New Academic Governance: Longstanding Patterns and Emerging Paradoxes	179
Maria do Mar Pereira

Gender Studies: A 'Cheeky Knowledge' Renormalised?	201
Farinaz Fassa and Sabine Kradolfer

Gender Equality as a Boon and a Bane to Gender Studies in the Conditions of the New Academic Governance	227
Heike Kahlert

Gender Studies in the Czech Republic: Institutionalisation Meets Neo-liberalism Contingent on Geopolitics	255
Blanka Nyklová

Author Information	281
--------------------------	-----