

Contents

|          |                                                                      |           |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction . . . . .                                        | 1  |
|          | References. . . . .                                                  | 6  |
| 2 | The Production Function . . . . .                             | 7  |
| 2.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                               | 7         |
| 2.2      | Production Technology . . . . .                                      | 7         |
| 2.3      | The Input Set . . . . .                                              | 11        |
| 2.4      | The Output Set . . . . .                                             | 12        |
| 2.5      | The Production Function . . . . .                                    | 13        |
| 2.6      | Diminishing Marginal Returns . . . . .                               | 13        |
| 2.6.1    | The Law of Diminishing Marginal Returns . . . . .                    | 14        |
| 2.6.2    | Graphical Illustration of the Production Function . . . . .          | 15        |
| 2.6.3    | Mathematical Representation of theProduction Function . . . . .  | 16        |
| 2.6.4    | The Production Elasticity. . . . .                                   | 17        |
| 3 | Optimisation with One Input . . . . .                         | 19 |
| 3.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                               | 19        |
| 3.2      | Optimisation from the Input Side . . . . .                           | 20        |
| 3.3      | Optimisation from the Output Side . . . . .                          | 24        |
| 4 | Production and Optimisation with Two or More Inputs . . . . . | 29 |
| 4.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                               | 29        |
| 4.2      | Cost Minimisation. . . . .                                           | 30        |
| 4.3      | The Expansion Path and the Form of the Production Function . . . . . | 33        |
| 4.4      | Maximisation of Production Under Budget Constraint. . . . .          | 37        |
| 4.5      | Profit Maximisation . . . . .                                        | 39        |
| 4.6      | The Pseudo Scale Line and Optimisation with Fixed Inputs. . . . .    | 41        |
| 4.7      | Substitution Between Inputs . . . . .                                | 42        |
|          | References. . . . .                                                  | 44        |

|           |                                                                     |           |
|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 5  | Costs . . . . .                                              | 45 |
| 5.1       | One Variable Input . . . . .                                        | 45        |
| 5.2       | Multiple Variable Inputs . . . . .                                  | 48        |
| 5.3       | Short and Long Run Costs . . . . .                                  | 52        |
| 5.4       | Calculation of Costs in Practice . . . . .                          | 54        |
| 5.4.1     | The Opportunity Cost Principle . . . . .                            | 55        |
| 5.4.2     | The Accounting Principle . . . . .                                  | 55        |
|           | Reference . . . . .                                                 | 57        |
| 6  | Productivity, Efficiency and Technological Changes . . . . . | 59 |
| 6.1       | Introduction . . . . .                                              | 59        |
| 6.2       | Definitions . . . . .                                               | 59        |
| 6.2.1     | Productivity . . . . .                                              | 59        |
| 6.2.2     | Efficiency . . . . .                                                | 61        |
| 6.2.3     | Technological Changes . . . . .                                     | 63        |
| 6.2.4     | The Scale of Production . . . . .                                   | 64        |
| 6.3       | Changes in Productivity . . . . .                                   | 65        |
|           | References . . . . .                                                | 68        |
| 7  | Input Demand Functions . . . . .                             | 69 |
| 7.1       | Introduction . . . . .                                              | 69        |
| 7.2       | One Variable Input . . . . .                                        | 70        |
| 7.3       | Multiple Variable Inputs . . . . .                                  | 72        |
| 7.3.1     | Increasing Output Price . . . . .                                   | 77        |
| 7.4       | Input Demand Under Budget Constraint . . . . .                      | 79        |
| 7.5       | Demand When the Input Price depends on the Demand . . . . .         | 80        |
|           | Reference . . . . .                                                 | 81        |
| 8  | Land and Other Inputs . . . . .                              | 83 |
| 8.1       | Introduction . . . . .                                              | 83        |
| 8.2       | Land as a Special Input . . . . .                                   | 83        |
| 8.3       | Example of Homogeneous Production Function . . . . .                | 85        |
|           | References . . . . .                                                | 87        |
| 9  | The Company's Supply Function . . . . .                      | 89 |
| 9.1       | Introduction . . . . .                                              | 89        |
| 9.2       | The Supply Curve . . . . .                                          | 89        |
| 9.3       | Adjustment in the Long Run . . . . .                                | 91        |
| 9.4       | Derivation of the Supply Function: An Example . . . . .             | 92        |
| 10 | Optimisation of Production under Restrictions . . . . .      | 95 |
| 10.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                              | 95        |
| 10.2      | General Method for Optimisation under Restrictions . . . . .        | 96        |
| 10.3      | Examples of Usage . . . . .                                         | 99        |

|           |                                                                        |            |
|-----------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 10.3.1    | Set-aside vs. Restriction of Production . . . . .                      | 102        |
| 10.3.2    | Limited Input . . . . .                                                | 102        |
| 10.3.3    | Compulsory Set-aside of Land . . . . .                                 | 103        |
| 10.3.4    | Adaptation due to Product Price Decrease . . . . .                     | 104        |
| 10.3.5    | Restriction of Output – Illustratedby Milk Quota Example . . . . . | 105        |
|           | References. . . . .                                                    | 110        |
| 11 | Economies of Scale and Size . . . . .                           | 111 |
| 11.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                 | 111        |
| 11.2      | Economies of Size . . . . .                                            | 112        |
| 11.3      | The Optimal Size of the Firm . . . . .                                 | 115        |
| 11.4      | Economies of Scale. . . . .                                            | 116        |
| 11.5      | Summary . . . . .                                                      | 119        |
|           | References. . . . .                                                    | 120        |
| 12 | The Fixation of the Production Factors . . . . .                | 121 |
| 12.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                 | 121        |
| 12.2      | Degree of “Fixation” . . . . .                                         | 121        |
| 12.3      | Theory of Fixation of Production Factors . . . . .                     | 122        |
| 12.4      | Disadvantages (and Advantages) of Fixed Factors . . . . .              | 125        |
| 12.5      | Limiting the Fixation of the Factors . . . . .                         | 127        |
| 12.6      | The Duration of the Fixation . . . . .                                 | 128        |
| 12.7      | Measuring the Fixation of Production Factors . . . . .                 | 128        |
| 13 | Decreasing Sales Curve. . . . .                                 | 129 |
| 13.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                 | 129        |
| 13.2      | Perfect Competition as a Reference. . . . .                            | 129        |
| 13.3      | Monopoly . . . . .                                                     | 132        |
| 13.4      | Optimisation under Monopoly . . . . .                                  | 133        |
| 13.5      | Optimisation from the Input Side . . . . .                             | 136        |
| 13.6      | Product Differentiation and Monopolistic Competition . . . . .         | 138        |
|           | 13.6.1 Acquisition of Input . . . . .                                  | 141        |
|           | 13.6.2 The Production Process . . . . .                                | 142        |
|           | 13.6.3 Delivery of Output . . . . .                                    | 142        |
|           | Reference . . . . .                                                    | 142        |
| 14 | Production over Time. . . . .                                   | 143 |
| 14.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                 | 143        |
| 14.2      | General Theory. . . . .                                                | 144        |
| 14.3      | The Replacement Calculation. . . . .                                   | 147        |
|           | 14.3.1 Introduction . . . . .                                          | 147        |
|           | 14.3.2 Optimal Termination Time for One Individual Asset. . . . .      | 148        |

|           |                                                                             |            |
|-----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 14.3.3    | Optimal Replacement Time for Replacing an Assetwith a New One . . . . . | 151        |
| Appendix  | . . . . .                                                                   | 159        |
|           | Interest Calculation. . . . .                                               | 159        |
| 15 | Risk and Uncertainty . . . . .                                       | 161 |
| 15.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                      | 161        |
| 15.2      | Expected Profit and Other Criteria . . . . .                                | 162        |
| 15.3      | The Cost of Risk . . . . .                                                  | 164        |
| 15.4      | The Expected Utility Model. . . . .                                         | 166        |
| 15.5      | Risk Management and the Insurance Model. . . . .                            | 169        |
| 16 | Economic Rent and the Value of Land . . . . .                        | 173 |
| 16.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                      | 173        |
| 16.2      | Land Rent and Marginal Land . . . . .                                       | 176        |
| 16.3      | The Use Value of Land. . . . .                                              | 177        |
| 16.4      | The Land Price Determination . . . . .                                      | 178        |
| 16.5      | Location and Land Rent . . . . .                                            | 180        |
| 17 | Production of Multiple Products . . . . .                            | 183 |
| 17.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                      | 183        |
| 17.2      | The Product Transformation Curve . . . . .                                  | 183        |
| 17.3      | The Optimal Combination of Output. . . . .                                  | 187        |
| 17.4      | Product Expansion Path. . . . .                                             | 191        |
| 17.5      | Intermediate Products and Trade. . . . .                                    | 191        |
| 17.6      | Multiple Inputs and Outputs. . . . .                                        | 194        |
| 18 | The Linear Programming Model. . . . .                                | 197 |
| 18.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                      | 197        |
| 18.2      | The Production Process . . . . .                                            | 200        |
| 18.3      | The Financial Result of the Production Process . . . . .                    | 203        |
| 18.4      | Multi-process Models . . . . .                                              | 204        |
| 18.5      | Substitution Between Input Factors. . . . .                                 | 205        |
| 19 | Production Planning in the Linear Programming Model:                 |            |
|           | Linear Programming . . . . .                                         | 211 |
| 19.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                      | 211        |
| 19.2      | Fixed and Variable Inputs . . . . .                                         | 211        |
| 19.3      | Optimisation with Fixed and Variable Inputs . . . . .                       | 212        |
| 19.4      | An Example. . . . .                                                         | 213        |
| 19.5      | Quasi-fixed Input . . . . .                                                 | 215        |
| 19.6      | Intermediate Goods. . . . .                                                 | 217        |
| 19.7      | Determination of the Production Model Parameters . . . . .                  | 219        |

|           |                                                                         |            |
|-----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 19.8      | Interpretation of the Dual Problem . . . . .                            | 221        |
|           | References. . . . .                                                     | 223        |
| 20 | Use of Linear Programming in Practical Production Planning . . . | 225 |
| 20.1      | Static Models . . . . .                                                 | 226        |
| 20.1.1    | Introduction . . . . .                                                  | 226        |
| 20.1.2    | From Problem to LP Model: An Example . . . . .                          | 227        |
| 20.1.3    | Process Formulation . . . . .                                           | 234        |
| 20.2      | Multi-Period Models . . . . .                                           | 244        |
| 20.2.1    | Introduction . . . . .                                                  | 244        |
| 20.2.2    | General Model . . . . .                                                 | 245        |
| 20.2.3    | Examples of Formulations . . . . .                                      | 247        |
| 20.2.4    | Concluding Remarks . . . . .                                            | 252        |
| 20.3      | Integer Programming. . . . .                                            | 254        |
| 20.3.1    | Introduction . . . . .                                                  | 254        |
| 20.3.2    | Examples of Formulations . . . . .                                      | 255        |
| 20.3.3    | Solving the Integer Programming Problems . . . . .                      | 260        |
|           | References. . . . .                                                     | 260        |
|           | Appendix: Profit Concepts. . . . .                               | 261 |
|           | Index . . . . .                                                  | 271 |