I Introduction — Objective of this dissertation 1

1 Relevance of value propositions in service ecosystems 2
2 Research objectives 5
3 Background and research approach 8
4 Structure of this dissertation 17

II Theoretical background — Value propositions and service ecosystems from a service-dominant logic perspective 21

1 Goal and structural approach 22
2 Service-dominant logic as a research lens 24
3 Understanding service ecosystems for innovation 32
4 State of the art: Value propositions 37
5 Implications and summary of Part II 41

III Creating a foundation — The evolution of value propositions 45

1 Goal and structural approach 46
2 The development of value propositions as a concept 48
3 Method and data 50
4 Findings 60
5 Discussion 71

IV Understanding the outside — Perceived value propositions of service ecosystems 77

1 Goal and structural approach 78
2 Perceived value propositions in service ecosystems 80
3 Theoretical background 83
4 Method and data 86

Table of Contents

I Introduction — Objective of this dissertation 1

1 Relevance of value propositions in service ecosystems 2
2 Research objectives 5
3 Background and research approach 8
3.1 The chosen research paradigm 8
3.2 A qualitative case study approach to research 10
3.3 Different research approaches within this dissertation 11
3.3.1 Background and research approach for Part III: 12
3.3.2 Background and research approach for Part IV: 14
3.3.3 Background and research approach for Part V: 15
4 Structure of this dissertation 17

II Theoretical background — Value propositions and service ecosystems from a service-dominant logic perspective 21

1 Goal and structural approach 22
2 Service-dominant logic as a research lens 24
2.1 Value within goods-dominant logic 24
2.2 Service-dominant logic a new perspective on value exchange 26
2.3 Value creation from a service-dominant perspective 29
3 Understanding service ecosystems for innovation 32
3.1 Overview of the different ecosystem concepts 32
3.2 Ecosystem as a structure vs. ecosystem as affiliation 34
4 State of the art: Value propositions 37
4.1 Value propositions as dyadic promises to customers 37
4.2 Value propositions in service ecosystems 38
5 Implications and summary of Part II 41

III Creating a foundation — The evolution of value propositions 45

1 Goal and structural approach 46

2 The development of value propositions as a concept ... 48
3 Method and data ... 50
3.1 A systematic literature review and text mining analysis ... 50
3.2 Structure of the review ... 51
3.3 Definition of review scope ... 53
3.4 Conceptualization of the topic ... 55
3.5 Searching the literature ... 55
3.6 Literature analysis and synthesis ... 58
3.7 Research agenda ... 59
4 Findings ... 60
4.1 Value propositions - an overview of key themes and authors ... 60
4.2 Five types of value propositions ... 63
5 Discussion ... 71
5.1 Implications for management ... 71
5.2 Implications for future research ... 72
5.3 Summary ... 74

IV Understanding the outside — Perceived value propositions of service ecosystems ... 77

1 Goal and structural approach ... 78
2 Perceived value propositions in service ecosystems ... 80
2.1 The importance of value propositions ... 80
2.2 Understanding the perception of value propositions ... 81
3 Theoretical background ... 83
3.1 Perception of value and value propositions ... 83
3.2 Value proposition assessment ... 84
4 Method and data ... 86
4.1 Case design and selection ... 86
4.2 Data collection ... 88
4.3 Data analysis ... 90
5 Findings ... 95
5.1 Perception of value propositions in different stages ... 95
5.2 Four value proposition stages ... 97

6 Discussion 104
6.1 Implications for management 104
6.2 Implications for future research 106
6.3 Summary 109

V Understanding the inside — Orchestrating service ecosystems through value propositions 111

1 Goal and structural approach 112
2 Aligning value propositions in service ecosystems 114
3 Theoretical background 117
3.1 Value propositions as an alignment tool 117
3.2 Service ecosystem orchestration through value propositions alignment 118
4 Method and data 120
4.1 Case design and selection 120
4.2 Data collection 123
4.3 Data analysis 126
5 Findings 130
5.1 Practices for value proposition alignment 130
5.2 Value propositions shared in service ecosystems 138
6 Discussion 141
6.1 Implications for management 141
6.2 Implications for future research 142
6.3 Summary 145

VI Orchestrating service ecosystems — Towards a management framework for service ecosystems 147

1 Goal and structural approach 148
2 Orchestrating service ecosystems, a workshop guideline 150

VII Discussion — Shaping the understanding of value propositions in service ecosystems 167

1 Goal and structural approach 168
2 Summary of findings 170
2.1 Providing a basis for this dissertation 170
2.2 Creating a foundation of the value proposition concept 171
2.3 Understanding the outside 174
2.4 Understanding the inside 176
3 Implications 178
3.1 Implications for management 178
3.2 Limitations and implications for future research 180
3.2.1 Orchestration of service ecosystems in theory 180
3.2.2 Diversity of value proposition understanding 184
3.2.3 Perception of value propositions in service ecosystems 188
3.2.4 Limitations 190
4 Conclusion 192
5 Final considerations 193
