

Contents

Acknowledgments — VII

List of Illustrations — XI

List of Contributors — XIII

Sara S. Poor, Alison L. Beringer, and Olga V. Trokhimenko

Introduction — 1

Sara S. Poor

1 Peddling Devotion: Mothers and Daughters in Conversation Through Books — 25

Mary Marshall Campbell

2 Why Siegfried Has to Die: Gender, Violence, and the Social Order in the Nibelungenlied — 47

Olga V. Trokhimenko

3 “If You Are Desired, Then You Are Worthy”: Mothers, Daughters, and Paradoxes of Femininity in the Middle High German Tristan Sequels — 77

Katja Altpeter

4 Maternal Bonds in Konrad Fleck’s Flôre und Blanscheflûr — 103

Evelyn Meyer

5 Teaching a Daughter Sexual Desire and Love Lore: Herzelayde’s Mentorship of Sigune in Wolfram von Eschenbach’s Titirel and Albrecht von Scharfenberg’s jüngerer Titirel — 117

Ingrid Bennewitz

6 Mothers and Daughters Revisited: The Mother-Daughter Songs in the Context of the Later Neidhart Tradition — 137

Andreas Kraß

7 Rivalrous Masculinities: Competing Concepts of Knighthood in Bernard of Clairvaux’s Sermon In Praise of the New Knighthood and Hartmann von Aue’s Novella Gregorius — 161

Alison L. Beringer

- 8 A Fate Worse than Death? Virgil's "steinîn wîp" in Jans der Enikel's
Weltchronik — 177

Jutta Eming

- 9 Love and Disgust: Ambiguous Genres and Ambivalent Feelings in Herzmäre — 199

Index — 219