

Contents

Introduction	11
1. Institutional horizon –imagining institutions	17
Traditional and contemporary models of cultural institutions	17
Institution making	22
(Public) cultural institutions	22
Governance of cultural institutions through the past and the present	29
The language of the post-institution	32
Imagining and modelling the future of the post-institution ...	36
Modelling the post-institution	38
Post-institution and post-managerial paradigms	46
Methods and tactics towards modelling of new institutions – internalisation of the critique and practices or a parallel agency of change	51
2. Institutional imagination or a post-institutional paradigm	57
Organisation and institution	57
Strategic planning and decision-making in organisations and institutions	63
Self-organisation as governance and decision-making	65
Models and modes of institutions and organisations in performing arts	72
General models – standard model and collaborative model	74
Standard model (traditional/mainstream, homogenised managerial structure)	75
Specifics of the standard model and its varieties of public, commercial, and independent theatre	76

Specific model of a public theatre: Repertoire theatre	83
Collaborative model (new models, heterogenic managing structure, self-instituting)	85
Models in the alternative theatre scene “collaborative – horizontal – model”	85
The alternative theatre in North Macedonia	87
3. (One) perspective on contemporary performing arts	91
Dance, choreography and performance as context-related notions	92
Dance field basic differences and specificities	94
Dance, choreography and (theatre) performance in North Macedonia	103
4. The independent sector as a potential for new modelling	113
Independent organisations as temporary zones of critical reflection (case studies of North Macedonia and the ex-Yugoslavia region)	114
Analysis of the independent sector in culture in the region – new tactics and strategies	126
New tactics and strategies for development in the independent cultural scene	128
Creation of new spaces – enhancing the visibility of the independent sector	129
Temporary platforms with institutions	137
Analyses and outcomes of both approaches (the strategies of creation of spaces and temporary platforms)	140
Collaborative approaches – associations, platforms, strategic alliances, networking and co-governing models	143
(a) First approach – new communities solidifying around space(s) reformation	147
(b) Second approach – new community solidifying around common goals	150
(c) Third approach-strategic alliances for creation of new space(s)	153

5. Artist driven cultural policies vs top-down policies	159
Comparative overview of the EU and ex-Yugoslavia performing arts policies	159
Regional initiatives and contemporary performing arts (dance) in the cultural policies of North Macedonia	164
Cultural policy-making and development	176
Participative methods of policy making	176
North Macedonia – PPP and mixed or hybrid model	180
Shared policy for a new public culture – from paternalistic to post-(modern) institution	184
From shared policies and participative governance to rhizomatic governance and institution modelling	187
 6. Performing arts institution – an agent of societal and political transformations	 191
The performing arts institutions in North Macedonia	193
Proposal for conclusion	196
 Appendix	 201
 Case study	 201
Introduction	201
Legal/contractual aspect	202
Governing internal structure	203
Programme aspects (goals, instruments, analyses)	204
Key questions on the model development of the Kino Kultura project space	207
How to think of the Kino Kultura project space in future?	208
Possible Models	208
From project space to Platform, from Platform to Public (-civil) institution	209
Recommendation- or the end and the beginning	210
References	211