

Contents

Maciej Czeremski, Karol Zieliński
Introduction: Under the pressure of worldview	1
Maciej Czeremski
Myth – its characteristics and worldview-shaping function – a cognitive perspective	11
Jakub Bohuszewicz
A hypothesis of the shared origin of shamanism and schizophrenia in light of the Psychomental complex of the Tungus by S. M. Shirokogoroff	25
Małgorzata Zadka
Sensorial and cognitive motivation of Attic vase decoration	45
Karol Zieliński
The flexibility of traditional norms in the perspective of changes in oral narratives The case of Homer	59
Gregor Pobežin
Rome as context: myth, history and narrative.	89
Sławomir Torbus
Literary independence of Matthew 8:28–34 and the oral tradition.	105
Andrzej Szyjewski
The formation of a world model in the formative period of Tolkien's mythology . .	115
Marko Marinčič
Lost empires, blurred world-views, shifting genres: Theodor Haecker and 20 th century scholarship on Virgil's humanitas	147
Izabella Malej
Dancing with thoughts: Nikolai Berdyaev's dialectical model of worldview expression	163
Elżbieta Przybył-Sadowska
Worldviews and images. Controversy over the use of sacred symbols and images in the social space of contemporary Poland	183
Agnieszka Libura
Intergenerational relationships in multimodal Internet humour The case of binary memes	201
Biograms.	219