

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
List of Abbreviations	ix
1 Introduction	1
1.1 What is a Conservative?	1
1.2 The Neo-Tories in British research	2
1.3 A 'conservative revolution' in Europe?	7
1.4 Methods, structure, investigation period, sources	10
2 Lost Generation? A Group Biography of the Neo-Tories	15
2.1 The 'lost' generation	17
2.2 Journalists and politicians on the right wing of the Conservative Party	20
2.3 'What I am afraid of is the feminine man': masculine ideology and anti-feminism	27
3 Counter-Narratives of History: The Fight for Interpretation	31
3.1 'The lie about the War': war memoirs in opposition to a pacifist interpretation	31
3.1.1 The First World War in British public opinion	31
3.1.2 The war books in the British press	33
3.1.3 The war books controversy	36
3.1.4 The anti-pacifism of the Neo-Tories	40
3.2 The historical view of the Neo-Tories	44
3.2.1 Tory interpretation of history	44
3.2.2 'The Inglorious Rebellion': 1688-9 and the Neo-Tories	46
3.2.3 The Merry England of the Middle Ages as a golden age	49
4 Neo-Toryism as a World View	53
4.1 Racial and civilizational downfall: degeneration as a central theme	53
4.1.1 Degeneration and national decline? A hundred years of eugenic thought in Britain	54
4.1.2 The fear of British degeneration in the interwar years	58
4.1.3 Degeneration in the Neo-Tory line of argument	64

4.1.4	The city as place of degeneration: anti-urbanism in Neo-Tory political thought	68
4.2	Democracy on trial: critique of the system in the land of the Mother of Parliaments	73
4.2.1	'The twilight of democracy': the end of the democracies as a historical process	74
4.2.2	The tyranny of the masses: critiques of democracy in Britain after 1929	80
4.2.3	'The system is not good in England, but in India it will be much worse': critiques of democracy and the rebellion against the government's plans for India	84
4.3	True Toryism: visions of a radical conservatism in opposition to the Conservative Party	91
4.3.1	The revival of conservatism as an intellectual force: Criterion , Ashridge, Right Book Club	92
4.3.2	The Neo-Toryism of the English Review Group	98
4.3.3	Stanley Baldwin: the anti-hero of the Neo-Tories	102
4.3.4	Absolute monarchy and the corporatist state as goals of Neo-Tory political thought	105
4.4	Italy as example? The response to Italian Fascism among the Neo-Tories	112
4.4.1	Fascism and universalism	113
4.4.2	The Neo-Tories' concept of Europe	117
4.4.3	The difficulty of a positive reaction to Fascism due to the impact of violence	122
4.5	'Little use to expel Jews to-day, for we all have become Jews': the consensual antisemitism of the Neo-Tories	126
4.5.1	British antisemitism: a 'special path in reverse'?	126
4.5.2	Theoretically anchored antisemitism as a part of the anti-Whig historiography	128
4.5.3	Fighting Judaized values rather than expelling the Jews	133
4.5.4	Appeasement and antisemitism	136
5	Political Practice on the Right Wing of the Conservative Party	143
5.1	From the world of letters to the world of politics: from the establishment of the Everyman magazine to the Lord Lloyd dinner in autumn 1933	143
5.1.1	Lord Lloyd as British dictator: Neo-Tory plans in summer and autumn 1933	143
5.1.2	The Lord Lloyd dinner in November 1933	148

5.2	'We do not wear a black shirt': political clubs in proximity and in contrast to the British Union of Fascists	153
5.2.1	The formation of the January Club	154
5.2.2	The January Club and the Windsor Club	158
5.2.3	The British Movement	167
5.3	Friends of Nationalist Spain: successes and failures of a rightist intellectual pressure group	170
5.3.1	The significance of Spain to the Neo-Tories	170
5.3.2	The Neo-Tories and the Franco rebellion	176
5.3.3	Friends of Nationalist Spain	178
5.3.4	Guernica and Neo-Tory propaganda	182
5.4	Appeasement as focus and finale of the Neo-Tories	190
5.4.1	The ideologically motivated appeasement policy of the Neo-Tories	190
5.4.2	Austria, Munich, Prague, Danzig: waypoints in the policy of appeasement	193
5.4.3	Appeasement and Neo-Tory patriotism before and after the outbreak of the Second World War	201
6	Conclusion	207
	Notes	213
	References	281
	Index	311