6	Pathogenesis of antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw	45
	Riham Fliefel, Sven Otto
	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Which theories exist for the pathogenesis of antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw (ARONJ)?• Why are the jaw bones predominantly affected?• Why can nitrogen-containing bisphosphonates and denosumab cause ARONJ?

7 Small animal models for antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw 53

James L Borke, Ezher H Dayisoğlu, Stephan Zeiter

- Does small animal investigation make sense?
- What are the opportunities and limitations of small animal investigation?
- What are the advantages and disadvantages of small animal models of antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw (ARONJ)?
- What controversies exist concerning these small animal models?
- Are there significant differences among the various small animal models of ARONJ?
- Does jaw size matter?

8 Large animal models for antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw 59

Matthew R Allen, Pit Voss, Christoph Pautke

- Can antiresorptive drug-related osteonecrosis of the jaw (ARONJ) be related in large animals?
- Are animal models really necessary?
- What are the advantages of using large animals versus rodents?
