

1 Table of contents

1	Table of contents	0
2	Acknowledgement.....	4
3	Abstract	5
4	Introduction	7
5	Background	9
6	Methods and materials	15
6.1	Sample	15
6.2	Safety of subjects and the use of pseudonyms	15
6.3	Measurements	15
7	Results	21
7.1	Psychotherapy	23
7.1.1	Past psychotherapeutic treatment	23
7.1.2	Current psychotherapeutic treatment	24
7.2	Psychiatric treatment	25
7.2.1	Current and past psychiatric treatment	25
7.2.2	Witnessing others from the Buddhist group moving into psychiatry	26
7.3	Diagnoses.....	27
7.4	Social isolation	29
7.4.1	Isolation due to personal experiences.....	29
7.4.2	Qualitative data on loneliness and isolation due to personal experiences.....	29
7.4.3	Isolation of witnesses	31
7.4.4	Qualitative data on loneliness and isolation due to others' experiences	31
7.5	Personal experience of violence	33
7.5.1	Quantification of the violence confirmed.....	33
7.5.2	Qualitative data specifying violence experienced	33
7.5.3	Religious justification of violence.....	34
7.6	The neologism ' karma-purification '	35
7.6.1	Rationalizing harm with the neologism ' karma-purification '	35
7.6.2	Actions towards oneself referred to as ' karma-purification '	36
7.6.3	Qualitative data on reporting experiences with explanations of harm	36
7.6.4	Personal impact of the experience of ' karma-purification '	37
7.7	Slandered as severely mentally diseased by nonprofessionals in the Buddhist groups	39

7.8	Abuse	41
7.8.1	Victimization by a Buddhist group	41
7.8.2	Witnessing abuse by a Buddhist group	42
7.8.3	Tolerating abuse as member of a Buddhist group	43
7.8.4	Individual reflections on abuse	43
7.8.5	Involvement in the abuse of others as member of a Buddhist group	47
7.9	Reflection on the interaction with commands, obedience and testimony of abuse ...	49
7.9.1	Reflection on orders to avoid certain group members	50
7.9.2	Reflection on the information one person ought to be punished.....	51
7.10	Secrecy	55
7.10.1	Actions against individuals declared secret	55
7.10.2	Qualitative data reporting on secrecy involving the subjects themselves	56
7.10.3	Actions against others declared secret.....	57
7.10.4	Secrecy about actions to others due to sexual abuse	57
7.11	Wrong promises or deception by Buddhist teachers.....	59
7.11.1	Wrong promises	59
7.11.2	Deception	59
7.12	Contributions and work at seminar centers.....	61
7.12.1	Reasons for not taking into account professional education	61
7.12.2	Blurred deciders on permitted and unpermitted work in the Buddhist groups irrespective the education of participants and their hierarchical status	62
7.12.3	Achieving control over others within Buddhist groups and one's own hierarchical standing by controlling their work duties and workloads	63
7.13	Withdrawal or separation from a Buddhist organization	67
7.13.1	Quantification of withdrawal.....	67
7.13.2	Quantification of separation	68
7.13.3	Reporting reasons for separating from Buddhist organizations	69
7.13.4	Time period between the parting decision and separation itself, and the protective measures required.....	73
7.14	Help with and psychological impact of distancing	79
7.14.1	Help for distancing and its impact.....	79
7.14.2	Protective measures.....	81
7.14.3	Psychological impact.....	83
7.15	Lacking help or support	87
7.15.1	Missing help	87
7.15.2	Missing support	88

7.16	Witnessing others getting sick	91
7.17	Experiences when trying to help those in the group who got sick.....	93
8	Interpretation	95
8.1	Data interpretation with respect to the overall context with decontextualized use of Buddhist terms and concepts, and neologisms in international Buddhist organizations.....	95
8.2	A cross-group subculture attributing itself to Buddhism with shared linguistic use of neologisms and identical decontextualized, oversimplified concepts	95
8.3	Interpretation of the results in the questionnaires.....	99
8.3.1	The ways of conceptualizing contributions at seminar facilities and centers	99
8.3.2	Autonomy versus blind obedience in the strictly hierarchical structures, and intransparency.....	101
8.3.3	Violence, secrecy and the impact of the neologism and concept of a ' karma-purification ' of others.....	102
8.3.4	Individual loss of trust due to wrong promises and deception by so-called Buddhist teachers, and its impact on the treatment of the diseased as well as on the reputation of Buddhism	104
8.3.5	Testimony of others getting sick and experiences when trying to help them ..	104
8.3.6	Abuse and secrecy	104
8.3.7	Slander as mentally diseased.....	105
8.3.8	Psychological impact of withdrawal or separation and protective measures...	105
8.3.9	Social isolation of people in Buddhist groups.....	107
8.3.10	Mental health and treatment.....	108
8.3.11	Limitations	109
8.4	Impact on quality assurance and qualification of teachers	111
8.5	Impact on the psychotherapy for those affected.....	111
9	Conclusion.....	113
10	References	115
11	Table of figures	119