

Contents

Acknowledgments — VII

Note on the Interactive Elements of the Project — VIII

Introduction: A World of Made — 1

- 0.1 Artistic Rationale — 8
- 0.2 The Wider Cultural Context — 11

1 The Book and the Maze — 17

- 1.1 What is a Poem? — 18
- 1.2 What is a Video Game? — 27
- 1.3 Play Theory — 31
- 1.4 Conclusion — 37

2 Mixing Machines, or Some common animating principles that prefigure poem-game interplay — 38

- 2.1 Tension, Release — 39
- 2.2 Chance, Destiny, Apophenia — 46
- 2.3 Self-Expression — 53
- 2.4 Theory into Practice — 57

3 Matters of Translation, or What happens when poems and video games borrow from one another — 62

- 3.1 Phantasia and the Video Game Poem — 64
- 3.2 Patterning and Parallelism in Game Design — 72
- 3.3 Theory into Practice — 79

4 Separation Anxiety, or Plotting and visualising the tensions that exist between poetry and video games — 83

- 4.1 Oil and Water — 84
- 4.2 Text versus Cybertext — 87
- 4.3 Deep Attention versus Hyper Attention — 92
- 4.4 Rules versus Irresolution — 97
- 4.5 Conclusions — 102

5 Marking the Map: Four Types of Interplay — 105

- 5.1 Ludo-poetic Intertextual Mutation — 106

VI — Contents

5.2	Ludokinetic Poetry —	111
5.3	Poetic Games —	117
5.4	Poetry Games —	122
6	Letters from a Wilderness —	128
6.1	A Role-Playing Poem —	129
6.2	Two Shuffle-and-Draw Poems —	130
6.3	Six Moving-Parts Poems —	134
6.4	Two Poems with Graphics —	140
Conclusion —		146
Bibliography —		151
Mediography —		158
Glossary —		160
Index —		162