

List of figures	viii
Acknowledgments	x
1 Introduction: Refiguring digital cultural heritage and curation in a more-than-human world	1
2 The official birth of digital data as universal heritage	26
3 Digital data as the heritage of the modern world	70
4 Object concepts in digital cultural heritage	98
5 From objects to ecological formations	129
6 Digital data and artefactual production	162
7 Curating inside the archive and out in the world	200
8 The rise of more-than-human digital heritage in the Technosphere	227
9 Conclusion: Framing a more-than-human digital museology	265
Index	291