

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
List of Tables	xiii
List of Figures	xv
Chapter One: A Conceptual Inventory	1
Argument Structure	3
An Argument, Generally	3
Syllogisms	4
Argument Schemes	8
Toulmin Model	11
The Enthymeme	14
Interactive Arguments	15
The Momentary Exchange of Reasons	15
Conversational Arguments in a Critical Discussion	19
Summary: Structure	21
The Situation-Goals-Plans-Action Model	21
Situations	22
Goals	24
Plans	25
Action	25

Summary: SGPA	26
Arguing as a Fundamental Human Process	26
Summary	31
Chapter Two: Argument Frames	35
The Three Sets of Frames	36
First-Order Frames: Pursuing Own Goals	37
Second-Order Frames: Respecting the Other Arguer	45
The Third Frame: Reflective Understandings of Arguing	51
Summary: The Idea of Argument Frames	53
Empirical Results	54
Undergraduates and Older Adults	54
Men and Women	56
Associations Among the Frames Measures	58
Frames and Other Features of Personality	61
Conclusions: Empirical Work to Date	66
General Conclusions	67
Chapter Three: Argument Situations	71
Interpersonal Situations	72
Argument Topics	75
Deciding Whether or Not to Argue	81
Features of Situations Involving Arguing	90
Reasonably Apparent Features	91
Primary Goals	93
Subjective Situational Features	94
Secondary Goals	98
Conclusions	99
Chapter Four: Serial Arguments	103
The Nature of Serial Arguments	104
The Original Study	105
Serial Argument Topics	110
Consequences of Serial Arguments	113
Situational Effects and Intrapersonal Dynamics	115
Data	116
Situation	118
Goals, Tactics, and Outcomes	122
Statistical Details	123
Back to the Main Story	125
Section Summary	134
Conclusions	135

Chapter Five: The Rationality Engine	141
Group Thinking	143
Evolutionary Reasons for Optimism	144
Contemporary Evidence	148
Debiasing Arguments	149
Cognition	151
Motivation	155
Design	157
Understanding Debiasing	159
How Good Conversation Improves Argumentation	161
Fallacies	164
Convergent Arguments	168
Analogies	171
Conclusions	174
Chapter Six: Relational Dialogues	179
Walton's Theory of Dialogue Types	181
Cionea's Theory of Dialogues in Relationships	188
Investigating Argument Dialogues in Relationships	192
Operationalizing the Dialogue Types	192
Connecting Dialogue Preferences With Other Argumentation Measures	194
General Preferences for Dialogue Types	194
Argumentativeness and Verbal Aggressiveness	196
Argument Frames	198
Correlations Among the Dialogue Types	199
Summary	201
Couples and Their Dialogues	202
Summary	206
Chapter Seven: Arguing and Culture	211
Culture	212
Mapping the Globe: Initial Considerations	216
Mean Differences: Nations High and Low	219
Argument Motivation	220
Argument Frames	222
Personalizing Conflict	224
Sex Differences	227
Dynamics of Arguing Motivations	232
The Opposites Theory	233
The Basis for the Opposites Theory	235

Trying to Understand the Presence or Absence of Opposites	237
Hofstede Values	237
World Values Survey	240
How Strong a Conclusion Should Be Drawn?	241
Comparing Dynamics in Detail	242
Argument Motivations	242
Argument Frames	243
Personalizing Conflict	245
Conclusions	247
Chapter Eight: The Processes of Interpersonal Arguing	253
Multiple Simultaneous Processes	254
Observable Arguments	257
Individual Arguments	265
Shared Arguing	273
Conclusions	281
Appendix: Instrumentation	287
Argument Frames	288
Costs and Benefits of Arguing	291
Taking Conflict Personally	294
Scoring Directions	295
Dialogue Types	297
Argument Stakes	300
Index	303