

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: The Many Origins of Abstract Art	1
1: Apocalypse Now: Heinrich Von Kleist's Sublime Deframing of Caspar David Friedrich's Der Mönch Am Meer (1810)	22
2: The Kleistian Sublime Is Now: Kazimir Malevich, Mark Rothko, Barnett Newman	55
3: The Clouding of Perception: Seeing The (Un)Real Potential for Abstraction in the Poetry and Science of Goethe's Clouds (1821)	99
4: In the Service of Clouds or Optical Illusion?: Romanticism, Pointillism, and Impressionism	138
5: Driven to Distraction and from Abstraction: The Birth and Death of Abstract Art in Gottfried Keller's Der Grüne Heinrich (1854/55, 1879/80)	174
6: Inside the Mind and Outside the Margins: The Unruly Lines of Paul Klee, André Masson, and Cy Twombly	206
Epilogue: Laocoön and His Sisters: The Future of Literature and Art	243
Bibliography	259
Index	285