

Table of Contents

Foreword..... xi
William Ayers

Prefacexv
Frank Hernandez

Acknowledgments xix

Introduction: Every Day Is Like Skydiving Without a Parachute:
A Revolution for Abolishing the School to Prison Pipeline 1
Anthony J. Nocella II, Priya Parmar, and David Stovall

Part One: The Rise of an Imprisoning Youth Culture. 15

Chapter One: Criminalizing Education: Zero Tolerance Policies,
Police in the Hallways, and the School to Prison Pipeline 17
Nancy A. Heitzeg

Chapter Two: The Schoolhouse as Jailhouse. 43
Annette Fuentes

Chapter Three: Rethinking the School to Prison Pipeline. 59
David Gabbard

Chapter Four: Changing the Lens: Moving Away from the School to Prison Pipeline 73
Damien M. Sojoyner

Part Two: Targeting Youth 85

Chapter Five: Punishment Creep and the Crisis of Youth in the Age of Disposability 87
Henry A. Giroux

Chapter Six: Targets for Arrest 103
Jesselyn McCurdy

Chapter Seven: Race and Access to Green Space 119
Carol Mendoza Fisher

Part Three: Pushout Not Dropout of Marginalized Youth 149

Chapter Eight: Red Road Lost: A Story Based on True Events 151
Four Arrows

Chapter Nine: Emerging from Our Silos: Coalition Building for Black Girls 161
Maisha T. Winn and Stephanie S. Franklin

Chapter Ten: Messy, Butch, and Queer: LGBTQ Youth and the School to Prison Pipeline 177
Shannon D. Snapp, Jennifer M. Hoeing, Amanda Fields, and Stephen T. Russell

Part Four: Special Education Is Segregation 199

Chapter Eleven: Warehousing, Imprisoning, and Labeling Youth “Minorities” ... 201
Nekima Levy-Pounds

Chapter Twelve: Who Wants to Be Special? Pathologization and the Preparation of Bodies for Prison 215
Dean L. Adams and Erica R. Meiners

Chapter Thirteen: The New Eugenics: Challenging Urban Education and Special Education and the Promise of Hip Hop Pedagogy 235
Anthony J. Nocella II and Kim Socha

Part Five: Behind the Walls 253

Chapter Fourteen: Prisons of Ignorance 255
Mumia Abu-Jamal

Chapter Fifteen: At the End of the Pipeline: Can the Liberal Arts Liberate the Incarcerated? 263
Deborah Appleman, Zeke Caligiuri, and Jon Vang

Chapter Sixteen: Transforming Justice and Hip Hop Activism in Action	279
Anthony J. Nocella II
Part Six: Transformative Alternatives	293
Chapter Seventeen: Back on the Block: Community Reentry and Reintegration of Formerly Incarcerated Youth	295
Don C. Sawyer III and Daniel White Hodge
Chapter Eighteen: Youth in Transition and School Reentry: Process, Problems, and Preparation	315
Anne Burns Thomas
Chapter Nineteen: A Reason to Be Angry: A Mother, Her Sons, and the School to Prison Pipeline	327
Letitia Basford, Bridget Borer, and Joe Lewis
Part Seven: Building Alternatives to Punitive Justice	345
Chapter Twenty: Ending the School to Prison Pipeline/Building Abolition Futures	347
Erica R. Meiners
Chapter Twenty-One: A New Choice of Weapon: Activism Through Hip Hop and Restorative Justice	369
Arash Daneshzadeh
Chapter Twenty-Two: Youth of Color Fight Back: Transforming Our Communities	387
Emilio Lacques-Zapien and Leslie Mendoza
Part Eight: Tactics for Abolition	401
Chapter Twenty-Three: Tactics and Strategies to Organize for Abolishing the School to Prison Pipeline	403
Anthony J. Nocella II
Chapter Twenty-Four: Abolition Strategies for Teachers Fighting Academic Repression in the Corporate-Academic Industrial Complex	417
Priya Parmar
Chapter Twenty-Five: Seven Considerations for “School” Abolition	427
David Stovall
Afterword	429
Bernardine Dohrn
Appendix: Organizations and Resources	433
Contributors	441