

Contents

Introduction	11
The Death of the Printed Book?	12
The Book as an Evolutionary Process?	16
The Book	18
Publishing	19
Structure	23
Approach of This Study	27
 1. Basic Concepts: Value and Acceptance	 31
1.1. Value	31
1.2. Acceptance	38
1.3. Value and the Book	42
The Value Chain of Publishing	48
1.4. Book Value Categories	51
Economic Value	53
Content Value	54
Symbolic Value	56
Conclusion	60
 2. The Gutenberg Age	 63
2.1. Context: Introduction of the Printed Book	64
Type Material	65
Paper	65
Printing Process	66
Gutenberg's B42	68
Incunables as Transitional Books	72

2.2. Early Printing Presses in England	75
2.2.1. Preconditions in England	75
Readers	80
Publishing Categories	81
Patronage	83
2.2.2. William Caxton	84
2.2.3. Wynkyn de Worde and Richard Pynson	94
Comparing Caxton, de Worde and Pynson	105
2.2.4. The English Provinces	109
Oxford (1478–1519)	109
Cambridge (1520–1522)	114
St Albans (1479–1486)	116
2.3. Acceptance of the Printed Book in England	119
2.4. The Book Value Categories Applied	127
 3. The Industrial Age	 133
3.1. Context: England During the Industrialization	134
3.1.1. Publication	138
Authors	138
Publisher	143
3.1.2. Manufacture	146
Printing from Plates	146
Paper	152
Sourcing of Material	154
New Printing Presses	157
3.1.3. Reception	159
3.1.4. Distribution	165
Railways	166
Libraries	167
Mudie’s “Select Library”	169
3.2. Acceptance of Industrialized Book Production	176
3.3. Book Value Categories Applied	182

4. The Digital Age	189
4.1. Context: Introduction of the E-Book	193
4.2. Publishing in the Digital Age	198
4.2.1. The Early E-Book-Market	198
4.2.2. Advantages and Disadvantages of Digital Content	203
Support of Acceptance	207
Hindrances of Acceptance	211
Piracy	211
Price Policy	213
Formats	214
Reading Devices	215
4.3. Acceptance of the Digital Book	220
4.4. The Book Value Categories Applied	226
 Conclusion	231
Gutenberg Age	235
Industrial Age	236
Digital Age	237
Prognosis?	241
 List of Illustrations	249
 Bibliography	251