

Table of Contents

Introduction

1

Periodisation in a Global Context

Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet

Section I

CHRONOTYPOLOGIES

Questions of Space, Time, Class,
Race and State

Chronotypologies

13

An Introduction

Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet

1. Making Periodisation Possible

15

The Concept of the Course of Time

(Zeitverlaufsvorstellung) in Historical Thinking

Jörn Rüsen

2. 'Islamic Civilisation'

29

as a (Medieval) Problem

The Idea of Islamic Modernity

in Islamwissenschaft

David Moshfegh

3. Temporalities, Historical Writing and the Meaning of Revolution

71

A Eurasian View

Alessandro Stanziani

4. Periodisation as Dialectic in a Peasant Discourse from Late Colonial India

89

Milinda Banerjee

5. The Pitfalls of Terminology
Uncovering the Paradoxical Roots of Early Modern History in American Historiography

107

Justus Nipperdey

6. Historical Timeframes for Stateless Nations
Analysing the Colonised Periodisation
Paradox of Palestinian History

119

Susynne McElrone

Section II

CHRONOLOGICS

Contested Ways of Thinking Time

Chronologics

139

An Introduction

Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet

7. The Time of World History
Essaying Marshall G. S. Hodgson's Work on Islamicate Societies and Afro-Eurasian World History

141

Michael Geyer

8. Time and Its Others	173
Contesting Telos through a Sociospatial Analysis of Islamicate Chronotopes Heather Ferguson
9. Transnational Modernism and the Problem of Eurochronology	191
Özen Nergis Dolcerocca
10. The Mythical Medieval	205
Periodisation, Historical Memory and the Imagination of the Indian Nation Anubhuti Maurya
11. Reframing Time to Save the Nation	221
The Jewish Historian as Cultural Trickster Bernard D. Cooperman
12. Nationhood and Imposing Power over Historical Time and Chronology	253
Özlem Çaykent
Conclusion	271
Region, Nation, World Remarks on Scale and the Problem of Periodisation Sanjay Subrahmanyam	