

Table of Contents

Introduction		7
Manuscripts	Editorial Remarks on the Representation of the Manuscripts	24
	Editorial Note—Gauss Seminars	27
	Gauss Seminar I—Origins of Modernism	32
	Gauss Seminar II—The Sculptural Norm	39
	Gauss Seminar III—Color	49
	Gauss Seminar IV—Impressionism	65
	Gauss Seminar V—Fifth Seminar	81
	Gauss Seminar VI—Sixth Seminar	94
	Editorial Note—The Agony of Painting	121
	The Agony of Painting	126
	Editorial Note—The Decline of Art	147
	The Decline of Art	152
	Editorial Note—Talk Notes on Art Criticism Western Michigan University	167
	Talk Notes on Art Criticism	174
Illustrations		177
Analyses	Michael Fried—Greenberg at Princeton (1958–59)	203
	Stephanie Marchal—Clement Greenberg's Gauss Seminars: An Inflection Point in the Evolution of His Art Criticism	233
	Andreas Degner—"I'm Afraid I Lack a Critical Audience; the Piece is Full of Loopholes ...." Greenberg's Assessment of Avantgarde and Kitsch and an Undated Archival Essay	283
	Karlheinz Lüdeking—Greenberg and Adorno	313
Index		335
Credits		349
Publication Data		351