

Contents

Note on References and Translations	viii
Introduction	1
Part I. Aesthetics	13
1. Kant on the Subjectivity of Taste	15
2. On the Key to Kant's Critique of Taste	32
3. Lawfulness Without a Law: Kant on the Free Play of Imagination and Understanding	53
4. Aesthetic Judging and the Intentionality of Pleasure	94
5. The Pleasure of Judgement: Kant and the Possibility of Taste	111
Part II. Cognition	133
6. Reflective Judgement and Taste	135
7. Thinking the Particular as Contained Under the Universal	148
8. Aesthetic Judgement and Perceptual Normativity	170
9. The Appearance of Spontaneity: Kant on Judgement and Empirical Self-Knowledge	202
Part III. Teleology	225
10. Kant on Aesthetic and Biological Purposiveness	227
11. Kant on Understanding Organisms as Natural Purposes	255
12. Two Kinds of Mechanical Inexplicability in Kant and Aristotle	281
13. Kant's Biological Teleology and its Philosophical Significance	316
14. Oughts Without Intentions: A Kantian Approach to Biological Functions	332
Bibliography	347
Index	357