

Contents

Lisa Cordes, Therese Fuhrer

Introduction: Gender-Specific Elements in First-Person Statements in Classical Literature — 1

I The Rhetorics of a Gendered 'I'

Judith P. Hallett

The Gender and Third-Person Parameter in the Shaping of First-Person Discourse in Roman Literature — 11

Florence Klein

Construire un « je » genré dans les traductions de Catulle (c. 51 et 66) :
Érotique de l'appropriation littéraire et féminisation rétrospective des modèles grecs — 25

Lisa Cordes

Virgo, virago*, Vestal – Gender and Fiction in Seneca the Elder's Controversia 1.2 — 43

II Gendering a Non-Human 'I'

Markus Hafner

Pythia poetrix*? Oracular Polyphony between Poetic Collaboration and Delphic Politics — 71

Luca Basso

Costruire un 'io' divino: Ovidio e le dee — 93

Helge Baumann

In Memory of Reading Matrons and Eloquent Dogs: Female Voices and Role Constructions in Martial's Epigrams 10.63 and 11.69 — 105

III The Gendered 'I' in Choral Lyric and Tragedy

Emily Hauser

Making Men: Gender and the Poet in Pindar — 129

Valentina Moro

A Theatre of Vulnerability: Lamentation as a Gendered Self-Narration in Sophocles' Antigone — 151

Therese Fuhrer

A Female View of the Tragic Action: On the Function of Collective First-Person Statements in the Women's Choruses in the (ps.-)Senecan Tragedies Troades and Hercules Oetaeus — 179

IV The Gender Parameter in Erotic First-Person Discourse

Giulia Sissa

Elle sait. Elle dit. Elle rit. L'éloge paradoxal d'éros par Diotime de Mantinée — 203

Christoph Mayr

Gender und Rollen in Horaz carm. 1,13 — 243

Jacqueline Fabre-Serris

Enquête sur l'identité du « je » féminin de l'élégie 3.11 du Corpus Tibullianum : méthodes et conjectures — 257

V The Gender Parameter in Ovid's First-Person Discourse

Alison Sharrock

Living to Tell the Tale: Male and Female First-Person Narrators of Metamorphosis — 285

Federica Bessone

Autofiction* al femminile. Arte di raccontare ed effetti di genere in Ovidio — 307

Alison Keith

Gender and Genre in First-Person Discourse: Three Case Studies in Ovid's Metamorphoses — 329

VI The Gendered ‘I’ in the Poetry of Late Antiquity

Henriette Harich-Schwarzbauer

In den Wind gesprochen – Die Ich-Reden der Ceres in Claudians De raptu Proserpinae — 357

Ann-Kathrin Stähle

Medea virago in Dracontius’ Romulea — 375

Notes on Contributors — 391

General Index — 395

Index locorum — 403