Acknowledgements	XIX
1. Developing a Grounded Approach to the Early Egyptian Labels	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 The Inscribed Labels in the Past and the Present	5
1.3 Structure of the Book	7
1.4 Defining the Dataset	7
1.4.1 Discovery of the Labels	10
1.4.2 Charting Time and Dating the Labels	12
1.4.3 Current Location of the Labels	17
1.5 Review of Previous Research	18
1.5.1 The Inscribed Labels and Early Egyptian Society	19
1.5.2 Proposals for the Primary Use of Labels	20
1.5.3 Interpretations of Label Content	21
1.5.4 'Origins' and Anachronism	23
1.5.5 Labels as Sources for Early Palaeography and Philology	24
1.5.6 Labels as Evidence for Chronology	26
1.5.7 'Text'-centred Approaches	28
1.5.8 The Question of Historicity	29
1.6 From Dichotomies Toward Integration	30
1.7 Bridging Gaps in Previous Research	33
1.8 Aims and Research Questions	34
1.8.1 Research Question 1: Archaeological context	36
1.8.2 Research Question 2: Materiality	36
1.8.3 Research Question 3: Graphical content	37
1.8.4 Research Question 4: Comparanda	37
1.9 Summing Up	37
2. Theorising Images and Things in Practice	39
2.1 Introduction	39
2.2 Archaeological Context	41
2.2.1 The Temporal Dimension	42
2.2.2 The Spatial Dimension	42
2.2.3 The Depositional Dimension	43
2.2.4 The Typological Dimension	43
2.2.5 Burial in its Own Rite	44
2.3 Society and the Individual	45
2.3.1 From Structuralism to Structuration	45
2.3.2 Practice as Participation and Reification	48
2.4 Material Culture, Materials, Materiality	50

2.4.1	The 'Becoming' of the Image and Experimental Archaeology	53
2.4.2	Language as Analogy	54
2.5	Theoretical Approaches to Graphical Content	55
2.5.1	The Locus of Production	56
2.5.2	The Site of the Image	57
2.5.3	Audiencing	58
2.5.4	A Social Semiological Framework for Interpreting Graphical Meanings	59
2.6	Summing Up	61
3.	Methods and Methodology	63
3.1	Introduction	63
3.2	Collecting the Data	63
3.2.1	Published Sources	63
3.2.2	First-hand Observation	64
3.2.3	Problematising the Data	66
3.3	The Databases	67
3.3.1	Microsoft Access	67
3.3.2	ATLAS.ti	67
3.4	Analysing Archaeological Context	70
3.5	Analysing Material and Form	71
3.6	Analysing Graphical Content	74
3.7	Summing Up	76
4.	The Archaeological Context of Labels	77
4.1	Introduction	77
4.2	Problematising Archaeological Integrity and Documentation	77
4.3	Naqada	78
4.3.1	Naqada Mastaba	78
4.4	Abydos	80
4.4.1	Cemetery U	82
4.4.2	Cemetery B	86
4.4.3	The Relationship Between Cemeteries U and B Label Finds	89
4.4.4	'Royal' Tombs Cemetery	90
4.5	North Cemetery, Abydos	100
4.6	Saqqara	103
4.6.1	1st-Dynasty Mastaba Cemetery	103
4.6.2	Macramallah's Cemetery	113
4.7	Helwan	116
4.7.1	Tomb 68 H.12	116
4.7.2	Tomb 635 H.9(?)	116
4.7.3	Tomb 4/91	118
4.8	Tura	118
4.8.1	Grave 90 T.4	118
4.9	Giza	118

4.9.1	Mastaba Tomb V, Grave 2	118
4.10	Abu Rowash	119
4.10.1	Mastaba M01	119
4.11	Unprovenanced Labels	121
4.12	Assessing Archaeological Associations	121
4.12.1	The NIIIA1 Labels in Context	121
4.12.2	The NIIIC-early D Labels in Context	123
4.12.3	Funerary and/or Mortuary Use of Labels	127
4.13	Summing Up	128
5.	Label Materials and Techniques	131
5.1	Introduction	131
5.2	Materials and Materiality	131
5.3	Label Materials	132
5.3.1	Bone	134
5.3.2	Elephant Ivory	135
5.3.3	Hippopotamus Ivory	136
5.3.4	Stone	136
5.3.5	Wood	136
5.4	Materials of Manufacture: Discussion	138
5.4.1	Spatial and Temporal Distribution of Label Materials	139
5.5	Preservation	139
5.5.1	The Substrate	142
5.5.2	The Constrate	144
5.6	Materials Becoming Plaques: Making and shaping	145
5.6.1	The Perforation	147
5.7	Plaques Becoming Labels	150
5.7.1	Incision	150
5.7.2	Applied Colour	153
5.7.3	Unmade, Unpreserved or Unclear	153
5.7.4	Technique Summary	154
5.8	Colour	154
5.8.1	Substrate Colour	154
5.8.2	Constrate Colour	155
5.9	Single versus Double-Sided Labels	158
5.10	Materials and Techniques Across Time and Space	159
5.11	The Becoming of Material Visual Culture and Experimental Archaeology	162
5.12	Making, Unmaking and Remaking	166
5.13	Summing Up	167
6.	The Graphical Repertoire	169
6.1	Classifying and Categorising Images	169
6.2	Identifying and Defining Graphical Objects	170
6.3	Iconic Imagery	173

6.3.1	Adornment	173
6.3.2	Anthropomorphs	176
6.3.3	Architecture	177
6.3.4	Body Elements	178
6.3.5	Containers	179
6.3.6	Flora	180
6.3.7	Furniture	181
6.3.8	Implements	182
6.3.9	Landscape	183
6.3.10	Supports	183
6.3.11	Transport	184
6.3.12	Zoomorphs	184
6.4	Summary of Iconic GOs	185
6.5	Non-Iconic GOs	186
6.5.1	Structuring Elements (SEs)	186
6.5.2	Simple Linear Shapes	187
6.5.3	Complex Linear Shapes	188
6.5.4	Simple Rectangular Shapes	188
6.5.5	Complex Rectangular Shapes	189
6.5.6	Strokes and Notches	190
6.5.7	Triangular Shapes	190
6.5.8	Circular Shapes	191
6.5.9	Curvilinear Shapes	192
6.6	Unclassified Shapes	192
6.7	Summing Up	193
7.	Graphical Composition	197
7.1	Introduction	197
7.2	Graphical Object Attributes	197
7.2.1	Mode	199
7.2.2	Orientation	200
7.2.3	View	201
7.2.4	Direction	203
7.3	Graphical Associations	204
7.3.1	Contiguity	205
7.3.2	Bounding	207
7.3.3	Bounded	208
7.3.4	Partially Bounding/Bounded	208
7.3.5	Overlap	210
7.3.6	Clustering	212
7.3.7	Alignment	214
7.4	Composite Graphical Objects (CGOs)	214
7.4.1	Presence/Absence of Constituent Elements	216
7.4.2	Configuration	218
7.4.3	Ordering and Direction	218

7.5	Clusters	219
7.5.1	Presence/Absence of Constituent Elements	222
7.5.2	Organisation	223
7.5.3	Ordering and Direction of Clusters and Constituent Elements	224
7.6	Summing Up: CGOs and Clusters	226
7.7	General Image Distribution	226
7.7.1	Distribution of SGOs and CEs: NIIIA1	227
7.7.2	Distribution of SGOs and CEs: NIIIC–early D	227
7.7.3	Distribution of CGOs and Clusters: Both phases	229
7.8	Compositional Format	230
7.8.1	Using Horizontal Lines and Edges	230
7.8.2	Using Vertical Lines	232
7.8.3	Label Format Types	233
7.9	Image Distribution and Patterns According to Format	234
7.9.1	The Horizontal Format	237
7.9.2	The Mixed A Format	238
7.9.3	The Tabular Format	238
7.9.4	The Vertical Formats	240
7.9.5	The Mixed B Formats	242
7.10	Constructing a Label Typology and Database Organisation	243
8.	The Wider Graphical Context	247
8.1	Introduction	247
8.2	Comparative Case Study 1: NIIIA1 jar markings	247
8.2.1	Archaeological Context	250
8.2.2	Materials and Techniques	254
8.2.3	Graphical Repertoire	255
8.3	Comparative Case Study 2: NIIIC–early D funerary stelae	257
8.3.1	Archaeological Context	257
8.3.2	Materials and Techniques	267
8.3.3	Graphical Repertoire	270
8.4	Selected Comparisons	272
9.	The Wider Graphical Context: Composition	279
9.1	Introduction	279
9.2	Mode	279
9.3	Orientation and Direction	279
9.4	View	282
9.5	Graphical Associations	282
9.6	Sequence and Alignment	282
9.7	Format and Use of Space	283
9.8	Jar and Stelae Imagery: Discussion	284
9.8.1	NIIIA1 Jar Imagery in Action	284
9.8.2	Stelae Imagery in Action	285
9.9	Summing Up	288

10.	Exploring Semantic Significance	291
10.1	Identifying People, Quantifying Things	291
10.2	Finding the Individual	291
10.2.1	Discussion	295
10.3	Enumerating Things	296
10.3.1	Thinking Through Numerical Signs on the NIIIA1 Labels	296
10.3.2	Thinking Through Numerical Signs on the NIIIC-early D Labels	297
10.3.3	Discussion	299
10.4	From Grounded to More Abstracted Methods of Interpretation	301
11.	Conclusion	303
11.1	Label Practice Across Time and Space	304
11.2	The Physical Act of Labelling	306
11.3	Label Associations	307
11.4	Label Manipulation	310
11.5	Conditions of Access and Visibility	311
11.6	Marking Relationships Between People and Things	312
11.7	Concluding Remarks and Future Directions	315
