

Contents

The Politics of Historical Thinking — V

Preface — VII

Acknowledgment — IX

Note on Transliteration and Emphasis — XIII

Introduction — 1

1 The Discovery of ‘Greater India’ by Indian Scholars and Intellectuals — 19

- 1.1 Perceptions of Indian Cultural Expansion among the Earliest Indian Scholars — 19
- 1.2 Indian Cultural Expansionism in the Circle of the Svadeśī Art Movement — 25
- 1.3 Indian Cultural Expansionism in the Circle of the National Education Movement — 38
- 1.4 Shaping ‘Greater India’ in the Modern Review — 47
- 1.5 ‘Greater India’ in the Circle of Nationalist Leaders and Emigrants — 66
- 1.6 ‘Greater India’ in the Circle of Archaeologist-Historians and Amateur Historians — 77
- 1.7 Conclusion — 83

2 The Institutionalisation of ‘Greater India’ (1920s–1940s): Part I — 86

- 2.1 Establishing the Concept of ‘Greater India’ in Academic Discourse — 88
- 2.2 In Continuation with the National Artistic Approach — 92
- 2.3 Benoy Kumar Sarkar’s ‘Greater India’ of ‘Young India’ — 100
- 2.4 Benoy Kumar Sarkar and the Greater India Society — 121
- 2.5 Conclusion — 139

3 The Institutionalisation of ‘Greater India’ (1920s–1940s): Part II — 141

- 3.1 Kalidas Nag in the Circle of Rabindranath Tagore and Romain Rolland — 143
- 3.2 Visva-Bharati as a Metaphor for ‘Greater India’? — 165

3.3 Sylvain Lévi's Lectures to an Indian Audience — 174

3.4 The Founding of the Greater India Society — 182

3.5 Conclusion — 186

4 Variations on a 'Greater India' theme — 188

4.1 'Greater India' in the Indian Press — 188

4.2 'Greater India' Protagonists Traveling to 'Greater India' — 220

4.3 The 'Greater India' of a Hindu Pilgrim — 238

4.4 The 'Greater India' of a Christian Missionary — 246

4.5 The Modern 'Greater India' of Indian Emigrants — 259

4.6 'Greater India' in the Indian National Congress — 275

4.7 The Relationship between Indian 'Greater India' and British 'Greater India' — 282

4.8 The Institutional Landscape of 'Greater India' — 293

4.9 Conclusion — 299

5 The Decline, Revival and Afterlife of 'Greater India',
c. 1945–1965 — 301

5.1 The Akhaṇḍ Bhārat Conference and the 'Greater India' of the Hindu Mahāsabhā — 302

5.2 Benoy Kumar Sarkar's 'Greater India' via 'Greater Jadavpur' and 'Greater Bengal' — 313

5.3 The Asian Relations Conference and the Muting of 'Greater India' — 326

5.4 United Asia and the Lingering on 'Greater India' — 335

5.5 Indonesian Counter-Representation in United Asia — 347

5.6 Changing the Title but Not the Content — 355

5.7 Kalidas Nag and the Persistence of 'Greater India' — 366

5.8 The Shift from Including to Excluding 'Greater India' in K. M. Panikkar's Writings — 370

5.9 Conclusion — 381

Conclusion — 383

Bibliography — 393

Index of Names and Institutions — 421