

Contents

- 1 Introduction . . . . . 1
- 2 Optimised Budget Allocation in Marketing “Beyond Media” . . . . . 5
  - 2.1 Allocation Is Key! . . . . . 6
  - 2.2 Allocation Concerns More Than Media Mix . . . . . 7
  - 2.3 Global, Cross-Product Budget Allocation Bears Sizeable EBIT Potential . . . . . 9
  - 2.4 The Bigger Part of EBIT Impact Does NOT Result from Media Allocation . . . . . 10
  - 2.5 Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . . 13
- 3 Quantitative Consideration of the Long-Term Effect of Marketing Measures . . . . . 15
  - 3.1 Obvious Existence, Difficult Proof . . . . . 15
  - 3.2 Marketing Science Provides Long-Term Multipliers . . . . . 16
  - 3.3 Benchmarks from Practice Show Factor 2 and Broad Spread . . . 21
  - 3.4 Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . . 22
- 4 Striking the Right Balance: Image vs. Performance Marketing . . . . . 25
  - 4.1 The Performance Promise . . . . . 25
  - 4.2 Where Does Image End, Where Does Performance Begin? . . . 27
  - 4.3 Can Digital Advertising Be Image Building at All? . . . . . 28
  - 4.4 But How to Find the Optimal Balance? . . . . . 31
  - 4.5 “Seeding” Makes No Sense Without “Harvesting” . . . . . 34
  - 4.6 Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . . 35
- 5 Campaign Tracking and Successful Marketing Controlling . . . . . 41
  - 5.1 Campaign-Specific Analyses Instead of Average Effectiveness . . . . . 41
  - 5.2 Marketing Controlling in the Context of Dynamic Channel Development . . . . . 43
  - 5.3 The Role of Pre-tests and Campaign Tracking . . . . . 44
  - 5.4 Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . . 47

---

6	Modelling, Model Architecture, and Model Quality . . . . .	51
6.1	The Right Target Variable . . . . .	51
6.2	The Right Model Architecture . . . . .	52
6.3	Model Quality Is More Than $R^2$ . . . . .	55
6.4	The Right Frequency of Updates . . . . .	56
6.5	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	57
7	Multi-touch Attribution and Unified Measurement . . . . .	59
7.1	Two Tools: One Goal . . . . .	59
7.2	There Is No Such Thing as a Free Lunch: Differences and Use Cases . . . . .	60
7.3	MTAs Are (Too) Often Nothing More Than Rules . . . . .	62
7.4	Best of Both Worlds? . . . . .	64
7.5	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	65
8	Individual Targeting and Privacy . . . . .	67
8.1	Segment-of-One . . . . .	67
8.2	Benefits of Individual Targeting and the Power of First-Party Data . . . . .	69
8.3	Unmet Expectations and the Risks of Hyper-Targeting . . . . .	72
8.4	Limitations Due to Regulation and Walled Gardens . . . . .	74
8.5	Is Spray ‘n’ Pray Coming Back Now? . . . . .	77
8.6	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	79
9	Agile Marketing, Agile Budgeting . . . . .	81
9.1	The Basics of Agile Marketing . . . . .	81
9.2	Agile Marketing: The Key to Success? . . . . .	82
9.3	How to Implement Agile Marketing . . . . .	83
9.4	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	85
10	“The Good, The Bad and The Ugly”: Data Requirements and Formats for a Successful and Cost-Effective Implementation . . . .	91
10.1	Data Sources and Basic Requirements for Model Variables . . . .	91
10.2	Data Structure: Small Differences with a Big Effect . . . . .	93
10.3	Dealing with “Data-Poor” Allocation Units . . . . .	93
10.4	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	97
11	In- Versus Outsourcing and Vendor Selection . . . . .	99
11.1	In- Versus Outsourcing . . . . .	99
11.2	Early Phase of Orientation: Pilot Studies and First Provider Screening . . . . .	102
11.3	Technical Evaluation of Service Providers . . . . .	104
11.4	Typical Cost Drivers from the Service Provider Perspective . . . .	106
11.5	Scorecards for Vendor Pitches . . . . .	107
11.6	Recommendations for Corporate Decision Makers . . . . .	111
12	Marketing in 2023ff: Agility as the “New Normal” . . . . .	113